IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF CAMDEN COUNTY STATE OF GEORGIA

CHRISTYN ELIZABETH JOHNSON, Plaintiff

V.

WILLIAM RODGER JOHNSON, Defendant

CIVIL ACTION FILE NO. 2025CV936

DEFENDANT'S EMERGENCY MOTION TO RECONSIDER AND SET ASIDE ORDER DATED OCTOBER 23, 2025, FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER & CONSTRUCTIVE TRUST, AND FOR SANCTIONS

COMES NOW the Defendant, William Rodger Johnson, Pro Se, and respectfully moves this Honorable Court to RECONSIDER and SET ASIDE the Order dated October 23, 2025 (Exhibit K), on the grounds that the Order is based on fundamental errors of law, constitutes an illegal seizure of separate property, was procured through Opposing Counsel's documented fraud and retaliation, and arose from a compromised process that forced the termination of his former counsel.

I. GROUNDS FOR SETTING ASIDE ALL PREDICATE ORDERS (COMPROMISED PROCESS)

The entire enforcement action is fatally flawed, originating from procedural failures that prevented the Defendant from being fairly and competently represented.

A. Genesis of Procedural Malpractice: The October 16, 2025 Order The initial Order dated October 16, 2025 (Exhibit F), failed to adequately protect the Defendant's separate, pre-marital property and best financial interests, placing him under severe duress and financial threat. The Order was issued without proper consideration of the complexity of the Thrift Savings Plan

(TSP) asset (Exhibit C: TSP Court Orders/POAs) and despite documented efforts by prior counsel to move the matter forward (Exhibits D & E: East Emails). This fundamental failure in representation resulting directly from the Court's Order necessitated the immediate termination of the Defendant's former counsel, Mr. Joseph East, Esq. (Exhibit G: Termination Email), for a documented failure of fiduciary duty. The Defendant, now forced to proceed pro se (Exhibit H: Notification of No Counsel) as a litigant with documented disabilities, requests the Court acknowledge that the process that led to the termination of his counsel and placed him in this position is fundamentally unfair and requires corrective judicial intervention.

B. Illegal Seizure of Separate, Non-Marital Property (Fundamental Error) The subsequent Order's requirement for a full withdrawal of the Defendant's Thrift Savings Plan (TSP) illegally invaded his separate property interest.

1. Separate Property: The Defendant's Civilian Career Brief (Exhibit N) documents his Service Computation Date for Leave (SCD Leave) of June 22, 2009. The parties were married on December 18, 2015. The Order forced the withdrawal and distribution of contributions and earnings accumulated for over six years prior to the marriage date, which are legally non-marital assets.
2. Marital Debt: The Order also failed to account for the outstanding TSP loan (a marital debt) of $7,236.88 which should have been deducted from the marital estate before division.
3. Result: The Court Order has resulted in the immediate, illegal, and irreversible seizure of the Defendant's separate property, which constitutes a fundamental legal error requiring the Order to be set aside.

C. Fraud on the Court and Quantifiable Damages (Material Misrepresentation) The Order was based on Opposing Counsel's (Ms. McGhan) false statement regarding federal tax law.

1. OC's Fraud: On October 21, 2025, Ms. McGhan emailed the Defendant stating: "A QDRO will not prevent the 10% penalty. The 10% penalty happens anytime you withdraw from a TSP before retirement age... You can't avoid the penalty in any way on this." (See Exhibit L: OC Email). This directly contradicts federal documentation provided to TSP participants (Exhibit B: TSP Payment Rights Notice).
2. The Truth (26 U.S.C. § 72(t)(2)(C)): This statement is a material misrepresentation of federal law. 26 U.S.C. § 72(t)(2)(C) explicitly exempts distributions made pursuant to a qualified domestic relations order (QDRO) or Retirement Benefits Court Order (RBCO) from the 10% early withdrawal penalty.
3. Resulting Damage: The Court, relying on OC's false assertion, mandated a penalized withdrawal instead of the proper RBCO procedure. The mandatory withdrawal of the Gross Distribution of $70,791.85 caused the Defendant an immediate, quantifiable, and permanent tax penalty loss of $7,079.19 (10% of the Gross Distribution, as confirmed by Exhibit A).

D. Liability for Total Withholding Cost ($14,158.37) The forced withdrawal of the Gross Distribution of $70,791.85 resulted in $14,158.37 being immediately withheld for Federal Tax and Penalty (Exhibit A). This entire financial loss should be borne by the Plaintiff's share of the marital estate and/or sanctioned against her counsel for the following reasons:

1. 10% Early Withdrawal Penalty (Avoidable): The $7,079.19 penalty was entirely avoidable had Plaintiff's counsel not committed fraud regarding the availability of an RBCO/QDRO. Plaintiff is therefore liable for the entire $7,079.19 penalty as a sanctionable set-off.

2. Income Tax Burden: The remainder of the withholding, and any other income tax ultimately due, was triggered solely by the premature, penalized withdrawal forced by Plaintiff's counsel's fraudulent motion. As this was done for the benefit of both parties (to pay marital debt and fund the marital split), the income tax liability should have been split pro-rata.

II. EMERGENCY NEED FOR INJUNCTIVE RELIEF (TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER / CONSTRUCTIVE TRUST)

The Defendant complied with the Order dated October 23, 2025 (Exhibit K), under duress, and the Net Cash Payment of $49,396.60 is scheduled to become liquid in the Defendant's bank account on or about Monday, October 27, 2025. Immediate distribution of the funds according to the flawed Order will result in irreparable harm because:

1. Unrecoverable Separate Property: Once distributed to the Plaintiff, the Defendant's pre-marital, non-marital property (proven by Exhibit N and Exhibit M) will be immediately dissipated and unrecoverable, necessitating a second lawsuit based on fraud to recover it.
2. Dissipation of Sanctionable Funds: The Plaintiff's purported share includes funds that must be retained to reimburse the Defendant for the $7,079.19 fraud-induced penalty and the $2,000.00 improper sanction fee.

A Constructive Trust over the disputed funds is the necessary remedy to prevent the Plaintiff from dissipating these amounts until the Court can hear the merits of the fraud and separate property claims.

III. ADA RETALIATION AND MISCONDUCT (PROCEDURAL ERROR)

The enforcement action and subsequent sanction were a violation of the Defendant's protected rights under the Americans with Disabilities Act.

1. ADA Request Filed/Ignorance of Disability: The Defendant filed a Request for Reasonable Accommodation on October 21, 2025 (Exhibit I), citing diagnosed ASD/ADHD and requesting a continuance and protection from short deadlines. Opposing Counsel's subsequent argument that the Defendant's past successful employment (Exhibit N: GS-12 Engineering Tech) history negates his current need for accommodation is fundamentally flawed, ignoring the reality of masking common to late-diagnosed individuals with Autism Spectrum Disorder and the breakdown in executive function when faced with high-stress litigation demands. The accommodation is sought not based on historical capacity, but on current, documented functional impairment.
2. Immediate Retaliation/Misconduct: The Defendant formally notified Opposing Counsel of the ADA filing (Exhibit J: Filing Notification to OC). Less than two hours later, OC retaliated by threatening an emergency hearing and mocking the Defendant's need for processing time: "I hope this notice of the emergency hearing on Thursday... gives you ample notice for processing." (See Exhibit L: OC Email). OC's assertion that she cannot "violate" the ADA because she is not a public entity is a smokescreen for professional misconduct. Her actions constitute bad faith and retaliation against a party seeking a legally protected, court-mandated accommodation, thus tragically undermining the integrity of the judicial process.

3. Sanction is Punitive: The subsequent Court Order (Exhibit K) enforced the short deadline and issued an improper $2,022 sanction fee against the Defendant for filing defensive motions—motions that were necessary to prevent the foreclosure and the $7,079.19 fraud that was ultimately committed against him. The $2,000 fee constitutes clear retaliation for the Defendant's efforts to seek protection under the ADA.

IV. PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, the Defendant prays for the following relief:

1. IMMEDIATELY SET ASIDE the Order dated October 23, 2025 (Exhibit K), in its entirety, and SET ASIDE ALL PREDICATE ORDERS (including the October 16, 2025 Order, Exhibit F) which are based upon a fundamentally flawed and compromised process. All matters should revert to the status quo as of October 21, 2025.
2. GRANT an Emergency Temporary Restraining Order preventing the Defendant from distributing the funds to the Plaintiff, and ORDER that the Plaintiff's purported 50% share and the amounts necessary for reimbursement of the fraud-induced penalty and tax liability be immediately placed into a Constructive Trust in the Court Registry or an agreed-upon Escrow Account pending a hearing on this Motion.
3. ORDER Plaintiff's Counsel, Jennifer McGhan, to Show Cause why she should not be held in contempt of court and sanctioned under O.C.G.A. § 9-15-14 for her documented misrepresentation of federal law (specifically 26 U.S.C. § 72(t)(2)(C)) and ADA retaliation (Exhibit L). Furthermore, ORDER Plaintiff's Counsel to cease and desist all harassing conduct toward the Defendant.

4. ORDER that the outstanding marital home arrears be paid entirely from the Plaintiff's purported share of the funds as a sanction for the documented fraud upon the Court and retaliation against a disabled litigant. In the alternative, ORDER the arrears be paid from the gross, undivided TSP withdrawal proceeds prior to any further division.
5. ORDER Plaintiff and/or her Counsel to reimburse the Defendant for the $7,079.19 penalty loss (as detailed in Section I.C.3.) plus the $2,022.00 improper sanction fee, for a total reimbursement/sanction amount of $9,079.19, and award the Defendant compensation for the significant time and effort required to prepare this Emergency Motion and correct the documented fraud and ADA retaliation. The Defendant requests that this compensation be calculated at a reasonable hourly rate (e.g., $300/hr) commensurate with the professional legal rates charged in this jurisdiction for all documented hours spent on this matter since October 21, 2025.
6. ORDER that the funds corresponding to the Defendant's pre-marital TSP contributions (June 2009 - Dec 2015) be immediately declared the Defendant's separate property (Exhibit N and Exhibit M) and subject to immediate return.
7. GRANT the Defendant a 30-day continuance to secure new counsel.

Respectfully submitted this 24th day of October, 2025.

Payment Rights Notice - Thrift Savings Plan

This Notice informs you of your rights concerning payments from the Thrift Savings Plan. As a Thrift Savings Plan participant, federal law requires you to receive this information.

This Payments Rights Notice will:

- Help you better understand your payment options and tax consequences you may be responsible for if withdrawing money from your Thrift Savings Plan account
- Show you how waiting to take a withdrawal may work to your advantage

If you request a payment from the Thrift Savings Plan or if a payment is going to be automatically made to you, you'll have 30 days from when you receive this notice to review its information in order to decide whether you'd like to:

- Continue with the payment
- Select a form of payment other than the normal form of payment
- Elect a direct rollover into another qualified employer plan or individual retirement account (IRA), if eligible

If you don't select a rollover, details on the possible tax consequences are in the Special Tax Notice section.

If you've left federal service and your vested balance at that time was under $200:

- You have 30 days to consider whether to elect a direct rollover and the tax consequences of not electing one.
- Only the Withholding Notice and the Special Tax Notice Regarding Plan Payments below may apply to you.

When making and confirming a payment, you're stating:

- You're waiving your rights to the 30-day notice period. If you don't want to waive this right, you shouldn't make or confirm a payment.

- You've received and understand the information in all sections within this Notice, including the Notice Regarding Commencement of Benefits, Withholding Notice and Special Tax Notice.
- You recognize that waiving your right to the 30-day notice period doesn't obligate the Plan to make the payment within 30-days.

Payment requests are made by visiting the My Account web site, tsp.gov or contacting the ThriftLine Service Center, 1-877-968-3778. You'll receive additional instructions when you make your actual request.

Notice Regarding Commencement of Benefits

Taking a payment before retirement age, instead of waiting or rolling any eligible money into another eligible retirement plan, means giving up your right to continue investing and accumulating earnings on a tax-deferred basis or tax-free basis for Roth contributions.

The taxable amount of your payment will be taxed in the current calendar year.

See the Special Tax Notice for more information on rollover-eligible payments and the tax consequences of failing to defer.

Keep in mind:

- You can avoid tax penalties by waiting to take any payments until age 59-1/2.
- If you request the payment before you're age 59-1/2 you may also have to pay an additional 10% tax on the taxable amount as an early withdrawal penalty.
- Requesting the payment before age 59-1/2 and before your Roth account is 5 years old means you may also lose the ability to receive tax-free earnings on amounts attributable to your Roth account.
- Some of the available investment options in the Thrift Savings Plan may not be available with similar terms outside the Plan. If you choose to delay commencement, you may continue to invest in any of the available investment options under the Plan.
- Fees and expenses (including administrative or investment-related fees) outside the Thrift Savings Plan also may be different from the fees and expenses that apply to your Plan.

For more information on the fees and expenses that apply to your account and the available investment options under the Plan, including their general availability outside of the Plan, visit My Account, tsp.gov, or contact the ThriftLine Service Center, 1-877-968-3778.

Your Payment Options

Here is a brief description of the available payment options under the Thrift Savings Plan. Your age, employment status, financial need and account balance will determine your eligibility for these options. Once you leave federal service, the normal form of payment is an annuity.

Payment Options While Employed In Federal Service

Age 59-1/2 Withdrawal

You can request an in-service withdrawal at any time, if you are age 59-1/2 or older, even if you don't have an immediate and heavy financial need. You can only take money from your Traditional (tax-deferred) account and Roth account.

Hardship Withdrawal
You can request a hardship withdrawal if you have an immediate and heavy financial need, based on plan requirements, and you have no other resources reasonably available to you.

To Qualify:

- Your withdrawal amount can't exceed the amount that is necessary to satisfy your need, including federal, state and local taxes if they apply.
- You must maintain the documentation which proves your hardship eligibility in case of an audit.
- A hardship withdrawal will be made in cash directly to you.

Payment Options After Leaving Federal Service

Annuity Purchase
You can request to purchase an annuity with either a portion (flat dollar amount) or a percentage of your vested account balance, if you are 85 or younger (annuities are not available for those 86 or older). These funds are transferred to an annuity provider, MetLife. An annuity pays a benefit to you (or to your joint annuitant) every month for life.

Partial Distribution
You can request a partial distribution, a portion (flat dollar amount or a percentage) of your vested account balance paid to you, in a single payment.

Lump Sum Distribution
You can request to have your entire vested account balance paid to you in a single payment.

Life Expectancy Installments
You can request to have your vested account balance distributed to you in the form of life expectancy installments (also referred to as periodic payments).

With life expectancy installments:

- You select the frequency (monthly, quarterly or annual).
- In January, the installment is calculated by taking the prior year's December 31 closing balance, divided by the life expectancy factor based on your age from the applicable IRS Life Expectancy table, and dividing it by the number of payments expected for that year, based on the frequency elected.
- The balance remains invested in the funds you've selected.
- You can continue to change your investment mix.
- You can stop the current payment stream, change the current payment stream, or change your installment to a fixed installment within 5 years or before age 59-1/2, you may be subject to a 10% additional income tax. You may want to consult with a tax advisor before changing your payment.

Fixed Installments
You can request to have your vested account balance distributed to you in the form of fixed installments (also referred to as periodic payments).

With fixed installments:

- You select the dollar amount and frequency (monthly, quarterly, or annual).
- Each installment amount is the same.

- You continue to receive installments until your account balance runs out.
- The balance remains invested in the funds you have selected.
- You may continue to change your remaining investment mix.

Required Minimum Distributions
Once you reach your required begin date, your vested account balance (less any Roth amounts if you're a participant) will be automatically distributed to you in required minimum distributions if you don't select a payment option. For more information on required minimum distribution begin dates, visit www.IRS.gov.

With required minimum distributions:

- The amount calculated is based on the prior year's December 31 adjusted closing balance (less any Roth amounts if you're a participant), divided by the applicable factor.
- Even if you select one of the other payment options, your payments throughout the year must meet the required minimum distribution amount that will be calculated each year.
- You'll receive an additional payment if the payments made throughout the year do not meet your required minimum distribution amount.

Withholding Notice (Applies to the Portion of a Payment That Isn't Eligible For Rollover)

The taxable portion of a payment that is not eligible for rollover is subject to federal income tax withholding unless you elect not to have withholding apply. Withholding on the taxable portion of a payment that is eligible for rollover is described in the Special Tax Notice Regarding Plan Payments section below.

Keep in mind:

- You can choose not to have federal withholding apply to the taxable portion of your payment that is not eligible for rollover or change your withholding status as often as you'd like.
- If the payment is a periodic payment (life expectancy installment, fixed installment that lasts 10 years or more, etc.), initiated prior to 2023, default withholding will be taken according to the wage withholding tables as if you were married, claiming 3 allowances, unless you choose otherwise. If initiated after 2022, wage withholding tables will be used as if you were single with no exemptions, unless you choose otherwise.
- If the payment is a nonperiodic payment (hardship withdrawal, fixed installment lasting under 10 years, required minimum distribution, etc.) withholding will be taken at a flat 10% rate.

Note: If you choose not to have withholding apply, or if you do not have enough federal income tax withheld, you may be responsible for the payment of estimated tax.

Special Tax Notice Regarding Plan Payments Not From a Designated Roth Account (Applies to the Portion of a Payment that is Eligible for Rollover)

Your Rollover Options

You are receiving this notice because all or a portion of a payment you are receiving from the Thrift Savings Plan (the "Plan") is eligible to be rolled over to an IRA or an employer plan. This notice is intended to help you decide whether to do such a rollover.

This notice describes the rollover rules that apply to payments from the Plan that are not from a designated Roth account (a type of account in some employer plans that is subject to special tax rules). If you also receive a payment from a designated Roth account in the Plan, you will be provided a different notice for that payment, and the Plan administrator or the payor will tell you the amount that is being paid from each account.

Rules that apply to most payments from a plan are described in the "General Information About Rollovers" section. Special rules that only apply in certain circumstances are described in the "Special Rules and Options" section.

General Information About Rollovers

How can a rollover affect my taxes?

You will be taxed on a payment from the Plan if you do not roll it over. If you are under age 59-1/2 and do not do a rollover, you will also have to pay a 10% additional income tax on early distributions (generally, distributions made before age 59-1/2), unless an exception applies. However, if you do a rollover, you will not have to pay tax until you receive payments later and the 10% additional income tax will not apply if those payments are made after you are age 59-1/2 (or if an exception to the 10% additional income tax applies).

What types of retirement accounts and plans may accept my rollover?

You may roll over the payment to either an IRA (an individual retirement account or individual retirement annuity) or an employer plan (a tax qualified plan, section 403(b) plan, or governmental section 457(b) plan) that will accept the rollover. The rules of the IRA or employer plan that holds the rollover will determine your investment options, fees, and rights to payment from the IRA or employer plan (for example, IRAs are not subject to spousal consent rules and IRAs may not provide loans). Further, the amount rolled over will become subject to the tax rules that apply to the IRA or employer plan.

How do I do a rollover?

There are two ways to do a rollover. You can do either a direct rollover or a 60-day rollover.

If you do a direct rollover, the Plan will make the payment directly to your IRA or an employer plan. You should contact the IRA sponsor or the administrator of the employer plan for information on how to do a direct rollover.

If you do not do a direct rollover, you may still do a rollover by making a deposit into an IRA or eligible employer plan that will accept it. Generally, you will have 60 days after you receive the payment to make the deposit. If you do not do a direct rollover, the Plan is required to withhold 20% of the payment for federal income taxes (up to the amount of cash and property received other than employer stock). This means that, in order to roll over the entire payment in a 60-day rollover, you must use other funds to make up for the 20% withheld. If you do not roll over the entire amount of the payment, the portion not rolled over will be taxed and will be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions if you are under age 59-1/2 (unless an exception applies).

How much may I roll over?

If you wish to do a rollover, you may roll over all or part of the amount eligible for rollover. Any payment from the Plan is eligible for rollover, except:

- Certain payments spread over a period of at least 10 years or over your life or life expectancy (or the joint lives or joint life expectancies of you and your beneficiary);
- Required minimum distributions after age 72 (if you were born before January 1, 1951), after age 73 (if you were born after December 31, 1950), or after death;
- Hardship distributions;
- Corrective distributions of contributions that exceed tax law limitations;
- Loans treated as deemed distributions (for example, loans in default due to missed payments before your employment ends); and
- Payments of certain automatic enrollment contributions that you request to withdraw within 90 days of your first contribution.

The Plan administrator or the payor can tell you what portion of a payment is eligible for rollover.

If I don't do a rollover, will I have to pay the 10% additional income tax on early distributions?
If you are under age 59-1/2, you will have to pay the 10% additional income tax on early distributions for any payment from the Plan (including amounts withheld for income tax) that you do not roll over, unless one of the exceptions listed below applies. This tax applies to the part of the distribution that you must include in income and is in addition to the regular income tax on the payment not rolled over.

The 10% additional income tax does not apply to the following payments from the Plan:

- Payments made after you separate from service if you will be at least age 55 in the year of the separation;
- Payments that start after you separate from service if paid at least annually in equal or close to equal amounts over your life or life expectancy (or the joint lives or joint life expectancies of you and your beneficiary);
- Payments from a governmental plan made after you separate from service if you are a qualified public safety employee and you have at least 25 years of service, or will be at least age 50 in the year of the separation;
- Payments made due to disability;
- Payments after your death;
- Corrective distributions of contributions that exceed tax law limitations;
- Payments made directly to the government to satisfy a federal tax levy;
- Payments made under a retirement benefit court order (RBCO);
- Payments up to the amount of your deductible medical expenses (without regard to whether you itemize deductions for the taxable year);
- Certain payments made while you are on active duty if you were a member of a reserve component called to duty after September 11, 2001 for more than 179 days;
- Payments of certain automatic enrollment contributions that you request to withdraw within 90 days of your first contribution.
- Payments excepted from the additional income tax by federal legislation relating to certain emergencies and disasters; and
- Phased retirement payments made to federal employees.

If I do a rollover to an IRA, will the 10% additional income tax apply to early distributions from the IRA?
If you receive a payment from an IRA when you are under age 59-1/2, you will have to pay the 10% additional income tax on early distributions on the part of the distribution that you must include in income, unless an exception applies. In general, the exceptions to the 10% additional income tax for early distributions from an IRA are the same as the exceptions listed above for early distributions from a plan. However, there are a few differences for payments from an IRA, including:

- The exception for payments made after you separate from service if you will be at least age 55 in the year of the separation (or age 50 for qualified public safety employees) does not apply.
- The exception for retirement benefit court orders (RBCOs) does not apply (although a special rule applies under which, as part of a divorce or separation agreement, a tax-free transfer may be made directly to an IRA of a spouse or former spouse); and
- The exception for payments made at least annually in equal or close to equal amounts over a specified period applies without regard to whether you have had a separation from service.

Additional exceptions for payments from an IRA including:

- Payments for qualified higher education expenses;
- Payments up to $10,000 used in a qualified first time home purchase; and
- Payments for health insurance premiums after you have received unemployment compensation for 12 consecutive weeks (or would have been eligible to receive unemployment compensation but for self employed status).

Will I owe State income taxes?

This notice does not address any State or local income tax rules (including withholding rules).

Special Rules And Options

If your payment includes after-tax/tax-exempt contributions
After-tax/Tax-exempt contributions included in a payment are not taxed. If you receive a partial payment which is only part of your total benefit, an allocable portion of your after-tax/tax-exempt contributions is included in the payment, so you cannot take a payment of only these after-tax/tax-exempt contributions In addition, special rules apply when you do a rollover, as described below.

You may roll over to an IRA a payment that includes after-tax/ tax-exempt contributions through either a direct rollover or a 60 -day rollover. You must keep track of the aggregate amount of the after-tax/tax-exempt contributions in all of your IRAs (in order to determine your taxable income for later payments from the IRAs). If you do a direct rollover of only a portion of the amount paid from the Plan and at the same time the rest is paid to you, the portion directly rolled over consists first of the amount that would be taxable if not rolled over.

For example, assume you are receiving a distribution of $12,000, of which $2,000 is after-tax/ tax-exempt contributions. In this case, if you directly roll over $10,000 to an IRA that is not a Roth IRA, no amount is taxable because the $2,000 amount not directly rolled over is treated as being after-tax/tax-exempt contributions. If you do a direct rollover of the entire amount paid from the Plan to two or more destinations at the same time, you can choose which destination receives the after-tax/ tax-exempt contributions.

Similarly, if you do a 60-day rollover to an IRA of only a portion of a payment made to you, the portion rolled over consists first of the amount that would be taxable if not rolled over. For example, assume you are receiving a distribution of $12,000, of which $2,000 is after-tax/ tax-exempt contributions, and no part of the distribution is directly rolled over. In this case, if you roll over $10,000 to an IRA that is not a Roth IRA in a 60-day rollover, no amount is taxable because the $2,000 amount not rolled over is treated as being after-tax/ tax-exempt contributions.

You may roll over to an employer plan all of a payment that includes after-tax/ tax-exempt contributions, but only through a direct rollover (and only if the receiving plan separately accounts for after-tax/ tax-exempt contributions and is not a governmental section 457(b) plan). You can do a 60-day rollover to an employer plan of part of a payment that includes after-tax/ tax-exempt contributions, but only up to the amount of the payment that would be taxable if not rolled over.

If you miss the 60-day rollover deadline

Generally, the 60-day rollover deadline cannot be extended. However, the IRS has the limited authority to waive the deadline under certain extraordinary circumstances, such as when external events prevented you from completing the rollover by the 60-day rollover deadline. Under certain circumstances, you may claim eligibility for a waiver of the 60-day rollover deadline by making a written self-certification. Otherwise, to apply for a waiver from the IRS, you must file a private letter ruling request with the IRS. Private letter ruling requests require the payment of a nonrefundable user fee. For more information, see IRS Publication 590-A, Contributions to Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs).

If you have an outstanding loan that is being offset

If you have an outstanding loan from the Plan, your Plan benefit may be offset by the outstanding amount of the loan, typically when your employment ends. The offset amount is treated as a distribution to you at the time of the offset. Generally, you may roll over all or any portion of the offset amount. Any offset amount that is not rolled over will be taxed (including the 10% additional income tax on early distributions, unless an exception applies). You may roll over offset amounts to an IRA or an employer plan (if the terms of the employer plan permit the plan to receive plan loan offset rollovers).

How long you have to complete the rollover depends on what kind of plan loan offset you have. If you have a qualified plan loan offset, you will have until your tax return due date (including extensions) for the tax year during which the offset occurs to complete your rollover. A qualified plan loan offset occurs when a plan loan in good standing is offset because your employer plan terminates, or because you sever from employment. If your plan loan offset occurs for any other reason (such as failure to make level loan repayments that results in a deemed distribution), then you have 60 days from the date the offset occurs to complete your rollover.

If you were born on or before January 1, 1936

If you were born on or before January 1, 1936 and receive a lump sum distribution that you do not roll over, special rules for calculating the amount of the tax on the payment might apply to you. For more information, see IRS Publication 575, Pension and Annuity Income.

If you roll over your payment to a Roth IRA

If you roll over a payment from the Plan to a Roth IRA, a special rule applies under which the amount of the payment rolled over (reduced by any after-tax/ tax-exempt amounts) will be taxed. In general, the 10% additional income tax on early distributions will not apply. However, if you take the amount rolled over out of the Roth IRA within the 5-year period that begins on January 1 of the year of the rollover, the 10% additional income tax penalty will apply (unless an exception applies). If you roll over the payment to a Roth IRA, later payments from the Roth IRA that are qualified distributions will not be taxed (including earnings after the rollover). A qualified distribution from a Roth IRA is a payment made after you are age 59-1/2 (or after your death or disability, or as a qualified first-time homebuyer distribution of up to $10,000) and after you have had a Roth IRA for at least 5 years. In applying this 5-year rule, you count from January 1 of the year for which your first contribution was made to a Roth IRA. Payments from the Roth IRA that are not qualified distributions will be taxed to the extent of earnings after the rollover, including the 10% additional income tax on early distributions (unless an exception applies). You do not have to take required minimum distributions from a Roth IRA during your lifetime. For more information, see IRS Publication 590-A, Contributions to Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs), and IRS Publication 590-B, Distributions from Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs).

If you are not a Plan participant
Payments after death of the participant. If you receive a distribution after the participant's death that you do not roll over, the distribution generally will be taxed in the same manner described elsewhere in this notice. However, the 10% additional income tax on early distributions does not apply, and the special rule described under the section "If you were born on or before January 1, 1936" applies only if the deceased participant was born on or before January 1, 1936.

If you are a surviving spouse.
If you receive a payment from the Plan as the surviving spouse of a deceased participant, you have the same rollover options that the participant would have had, as described elsewhere in this notice. In addition, if you choose to do a rollover to an IRA, you may treat the IRA as your own or as an inherited IRA.

An IRA you treat as your own is treated like any other IRA of yours, so that payments made to you before you are age 59-1/2 will be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions (unless an exception applies) and required minimum distributions from your IRA do not have to start until after you are age 72 (if you were born before January 1, 1951) or age 73 (if you were born after December 31, 1950). If you treat the IRA as an inherited IRA, payments from the IRA will not be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions. However, if the participant had started taking required minimum distributions, you will have to receive required minimum distributions from the inherited IRA. If the participant had not started taking required minimum distributions from the Plan, you will not have to start receiving required minimum distributions from the inherited IRA until the year the participant would have been age 72 (if the participant was born before January 1, 1951) or 73 (if the participant was born after December 31, 1950).

If you are a surviving beneficiary other than a spouse.
If you receive a payment from the Plan because of the participant's death and you are a designated beneficiary other than a surviving spouse, the only rollover option you have is to do a direct rollover to an inherited IRA. Payments from the inherited IRA will not be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions. You will have to receive required minimum distributions from the inherited IRA.

Payments under a RBCO. If you are the spouse or former spouse of the participant who receives a payment from the Plan under a RBCO, you generally have the same options and the same tax treatment that the participant would have (for example, you may roll over the payment to your own IRA or an eligible employer plan that will accept it). However, payments under the RBCO will not be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions.

If you are a nonresident alien

If you are a nonresident alien and you do not do a direct rollover to a U.S. IRA or U.S. employer plan, instead of withholding 20%, the Plan is generally required to withhold 30% of the payment for federal income taxes. If the amount withheld exceeds the amount of tax you owe (as may happen if you do a 60-day rollover), you may request an income tax refund by filing Form 1040NR and attaching your Form 1042-S.

See Form W-8BEN for claiming that you are entitled to a reduced rate of withholding under an income tax treaty. For more information, see also IRS Publication 519, U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens, and IRS Publication 515, Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities.

Other special rules
If a payment is one in a series of payments for less than 10 years, your choice whether to do a direct rollover will apply to all later payments in the series (unless you make a different choice for later payments).

If your payments for the year are less than $200 (not including payments from a designated Roth account in the Plan), the Plan is not required to allow you to do a direct rollover and is not required to withhold federal income taxes. However, you may do a 60-day rollover.

You may have special rollover rights if you recently served in the U.S. Armed Forces. For more information on special rollover rights related to the U.S. Armed Forces, see IRS Publication 3, Armed Forces' Tax Guide. You also may have special rollover rights if you were affected by a federally declared disaster (or similar event), or if you received a distribution on account of a disaster. For more information on special rollover rights related to disaster relief, see the IRS website at www.irs.gov.

Special Tax Notice Regarding Plan Payments From a Designated Roth Account (Applies to the Portion of a Payment that is Eligible for Rollover)

Your Rollover Options

You are receiving this notice because all or a portion of a payment you are receiving from the Thrift Savings Plan (the "Plan") is eligible to be rolled over to a Roth IRA or designated Roth account in an employer plan. This notice is intended to help you decide whether to do a rollover.

This notice describes the rollover rules that apply to payments from the Plan that are from a designated Roth account. If you also receive a payment from the Plan that is not from a designated Roth account, you will be provided a different notice for that payment, and the Plan administrator or the payor will tell you the amount that is being paid from each account.

Rules that apply to most payments from a designated Roth account are described in the "General Information About Rollovers" section. Special rules that only apply in certain circumstances are described in the "Special Rules and Options" section.

General Information About Rollovers

How can a rollover affect my taxes?

After-tax /Tax-exempt contributions included in a payment from a designated Roth account are not taxed, but earnings might be taxed. The tax treatment of earnings included in the payment depends on whether the payment is a qualified distribution. If a payment is only part of your designated Roth account, the payment will include an allocable portion of the earnings in your designated Roth account.

If the payment from the Plan is not a qualified distribution and you do not do a rollover to a Roth IRA or a designated Roth account in an employer plan, you will be taxed on the portion of the payment that is earnings. If you are under age 59-1/2, a 10% additional income tax on early distributions (generally, distributions made before age 59-1/2) will also apply to the earnings (unless an exception applies). However, if you do a rollover, you will not have to pay taxes currently on the earnings and you will not have to pay taxes later on payments that are qualified distributions.

If the payment from the Plan is a qualified distribution, you will not be taxed on any part of the payment even if you do not do a rollover. If you do a rollover, you will not be taxed on the amount you roll over and any earnings on the amount you roll over will not be taxed if paid later in a qualified distribution.

A qualified distribution from a designated Roth account in the Plan is a payment made after you are age 59-1/2 (or after your death or disability) and after you have had a designated Roth account in the Plan for at least 5 years. In applying the 5-year rule, you count from January 1 of the year your first contribution was made to the designated Roth account.

However, if you did a direct rollover to a designated Roth account in the Plan from a designated Roth account in another employer plan, your participation will count from January 1 of the year your first contribution was made to the designated Roth account in the Plan or, if earlier, to the designated Roth account in the other employer plan.

What types of retirement accounts and plans may accept my rollover?

You may roll over the payment to either a Roth IRA (a Roth individual retirement account or Roth individual retirement annuity) or a designated Roth account in an employer plan (a tax qualified plan, section 403(b) plan, or governmental section 457 plan) that will accept the rollover. The rules of the Roth IRA or employer plan that holds the rollover will determine your investment options, fees, and rights to payment from the Roth IRA or employer plan (for example, Roth IRAs are not subject to spousal consent rules and Roth IRAs may not provide loans). Further, the amount rolled over will become subject to the tax rules that apply to the Roth IRA or the designated Roth account in the employer plan. In general, these tax rules are similar to those described elsewhere in this notice, but differences include:

- If you do a rollover to a Roth IRA, all of your Roth IRAs will be considered for purposes of determining whether you have satisfied the 5-year rule (counting from January 1 of the year for which your first contribution was made to any of your Roth IRAs).
- If you do a rollover to a Roth IRA, you will not be required to take a distribution from the Roth IRA during your lifetime and you must keep track of the aggregate amount of the after-tax/ tax-exempt contributions in all of your Roth IRAs (in order to determine your taxable income for later Roth IRA payments that are not qualified distributions).
- Eligible rollover distributions from a Roth IRA can only be rolled over to another Roth IRA.

How do I do a rollover?

There are two ways to do a rollover. You can either do a direct rollover or a 60-day rollover.

If you do a direct rollover, the Plan will make the payment directly to your Roth IRA or designated Roth account in an employer plan. You should contact the Roth IRA sponsor or the administrator of the employer plan for information on how to do a direct rollover.

If you do not do a direct rollover, you may still do a rollover by making a deposit (generally within 60 days) into a Roth IRA, whether the payment is a qualified or nonqualified distribution. In addition, you can do a rollover by making a deposit within 60 days into a designated Roth account in an employer plan if the payment is a nonqualified distribution and the rollover does not exceed the amount of the earnings in the payment. You cannot do a 60-day rollover to an employer plan of any part of a qualified distribution. If you receive a distribution that is a nonqualified distribution and you do not roll over an amount at least equal to the earnings allocable to the distribution, you will be taxed on the amount of those earnings not rolled over, including the 10% additional income tax on early distributions if you are under age 59-1/2 (unless an exception applies).

If you do a direct rollover of only a portion of the amount paid from the Plan and a portion is paid to you at the same time, the portion directly rolled over consists first of earnings.

If you do not do a direct rollover and the payment is not a qualified distribution, the Plan is required to withhold 20% of the earnings for federal income taxes (up to the amount of cash and property received other than employer stock). This means that, in order to roll over the entire payment in a 60-day rollover to a Roth IRA, you must use other funds to make up for the 20% withheld.

How much may I roll over?

If you wish to do a rollover, you may roll over all or part of the amount eligible for rollover. Any payment from the Plan is eligible for rollover, except:

- Certain payments spread over a period of at least 10 years or over your life or life expectancy (or the joint lives or joint life expectancies of you and your beneficiary);
- Required minimum distributions after age 72 (if you were born before January 1, 1951), after age 73 (if you were born after December 31, 1950), or after death;
- Hardship distributions;
- Corrective distributions of contributions that exceed tax law limitations;
- Loans treated as deemed distributions (for example, loans in default due to missed payments before your employment ends);
- Payments of certain automatic enrollment contributions that you request to withdraw within 90 days of your first contribution.

The Plan administrator or the payor can tell you what portion of a payment is eligible for rollover.

If I don't do a rollover, will I have to pay the 10% additional income tax on early distributions?

If a payment is not a qualified distribution and you are under age 59-1/2, you will have to pay the 10% additional income tax on early distributions with respect to the earnings allocated to the payment that you do not roll over (including amounts withheld for income tax), unless one of the exceptions listed below applies. This tax is in addition to the regular income tax on the earnings not rolled over.

The 10% additional income tax does not apply to the following payments from the Plan:

- Payments made after you separate from service if you will be at least age 55 in the year of the separation;
- Payments that start after you separate from service if paid at least annually in equal or close to equal amounts over your life or life expectancy (or the joint lives or joint life expectancies of you and your beneficiary);
- Payments from a governmental plan made after you separate from service if you are a qualified public safety employee and you have at least 25 years of service, or will be at least age 50 in the year of the separation;
- Payments made due to disability;
- Payments after your death;
- Corrective distributions of contributions that exceed tax law limitations;
- Payments made directly to the government to satisfy a federal tax levy;
- Payments made under a retirement benefit court order (RBCO);
- Payments up to the amount of your deductible medical expenses;
- Certain payments made while you are on active duty if you were a member of a reserve component called to duty after September 11, 2001 for more than 179 days;
- Payments of certain automatic enrollment contributions that you request to withdraw within 90 days of your first contribution; and
- Payments excepted from the additional income tax by federal legislation relating to certain emergencies and disasters.

If I do a rollover to a Roth IRA, will the 10% additional income tax apply to early distributions from the IRA?

If you receive a payment from a Roth IRA when you are under age 59-1/2, you will have to pay the 10% additional income tax on early distributions on the earnings paid from the Roth IRA, unless an exception applies or the payment is a qualified distribution. In general, the exceptions to the 10% additional income tax for early distributions from a Roth IRA listed above are the same as the exceptions for early distributions from a plan. However, there are a few differences for payments from a Roth IRA, including:

- The exception for payments made after you separate from service if you will be at least age 55 in the year of the separation (or age 50 for qualified public safety employees) does not apply.
- The exception for retirement benefit court orders (RBCOs) does not apply (although a special rule applies under which, as part of a divorce or separation agreement, a tax-free transfer may be made directly to a Roth IRA of a spouse or former spouse).
- The exception for payments made at least annually in equal or close to equal amounts over a specified period applies without regard to whether you have had a separation from service.

Additional exceptions apply for payments from an IRA including:

- Payments for qualified higher education expenses;
- Payments up to $10,000 used in a qualified first time home purchase; and
- Payments for health insurance premiums after you have received unemployment compensation for 12 consecutive weeks (or would have been eligible to receive unemployment compensation but for self-employed status).

Will I owe State income taxes?
This notice does not address any State or local income tax rules (including withholding rules).

Special Rules and Options

If you miss the 60-day rollover deadline
Generally, the 60-day rollover deadline cannot be extended. However, the IRS has the limited authority to waive the deadline under certain extraordinary circumstances, such as when external events prevented you from completing the rollover by the 60-day rollover deadline. Under certain circumstances, you may claim eligibility for a waiver of the 60-day rollover deadline by making a written self-certification. Otherwise, to apply for a waiver from the IRS, you must file a private letter ruling request with the IRS. Private letter ruling requests require the payment of a nonrefundable user fee. For more information, see IRS Publication 590-A, Contributions to Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs).

If you have an outstanding loan that is being offset
If you have an outstanding loan from the Plan, your Plan benefit may be offset by the outstanding amount of the loan, typically when your employment ends. The offset amount is treated as a distribution to you at the time of the offset. Generally, you may roll over all or any portion of the offset amount. If the distribution attributable to the offset is not a qualified distribution and you do not roll over the offset amount, you will be taxed on any earnings included in the distribution (including the 10% additional income tax on early distributions, unless an exception applies). You may roll over the earnings included in the loan offset to a Roth IRA or designated Roth account in an employer plan (if the terms of the employer plan permit the plan to receive loan offset rollovers). You may also roll over the full amount of the offset to a Roth IRA.

How long you have to complete the rollover depends on what kind of plan loan offset you have. If you have a qualified plan loan offset, you will have until your tax return due date (including extensions) for the tax year during which the offset occurs to complete your rollover. A qualified plan loan offset occurs when a plan loan in good standing is offset because your employer plan terminates, or because you sever from employment. If your plan loan offset occurs for any other reason, then you have 60 days from the date the offset occurs to complete your rollover.

If you receive a nonqualified distribution and you were born on or before January 1, 1936
If you were born on or before January 1, 1936, and receive a lump sum distribution that is not a qualified distribution and that you do not roll over, special rules for calculating the amount of the tax on the earnings in the payment might apply to you. For more information, see IRS Publication 575, Pension and Annuity Income.

If you are not a Plan participant
Payments after death of the participant. If you receive a distribution after the participant's death that you do not roll over, the distribution generally will be taxed in the same manner described elsewhere in this notice. However, whether the payment is a qualified distribution generally depends on when the participant first made a contribution to the designated Roth account in the Plan. Also, the 10% additional income tax on early distributions does not apply, and the special rule described under the section "If you receive a nonqualified distribution and you were born on or before January 1, 1936" applies only if the deceased participant was born on or before January 1, 1936.

If you are a surviving spouse.
If you receive a payment from the Plan as the surviving spouse of a deceased participant, you have the same rollover options that the participant would have had, as described elsewhere in this notice. In addition, if you choose to do a rollover to a Roth IRA, you may treat the Roth IRA as your own or as an inherited Roth IRA. A Roth IRA you treat as your own is treated like any other Roth IRA of yours, so that you will not have to receive any required minimum distributions during your lifetime and earnings paid to you in a nonqualified distribution before you are age 59-1/2 will be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions (unless an exception applies). If you treat the Roth IRA as an inherited Roth IRA, payments from the Roth IRA will not be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions. An inherited Roth IRA is subject to required minimum distributions. If the participant had started taking required minimum distributions from the Plan, you will have to receive required minimum distributions from the inherited Roth IRA. If the participant had not started taking required minimum distributions, you will not have to start receiving required minimum distributions from the inherited Roth IRA until the year the participant would have been age 72 (if the participant was born before January 1, 1950) or age 73 (if the participant was born after December 31, 1950).

If you are a surviving beneficiary other than a spouse. If you receive a payment from the Plan because of the participant's death and you are a designated beneficiary other than a surviving spouse, the only rollover option you have is to do a direct rollover to an inherited Roth IRA. Payments from the inherited Roth IRA, even if made in a nonqualified distribution, will not be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions. You will have to receive required minimum distributions from the inherited Roth IRA.

Payments under a RBCO. If you are the spouse or a former spouse of the participant who receives a payment from the Plan under a RBCO, you generally have the same options and the same tax treatment that the participant would have (for example, you may roll over the payment to your own Roth IRA or designated Roth account in an eligible employer plan that will accept it).

If you are a nonresident alien

If you are a nonresident alien and you do not do a direct rollover to a U.S. IRA or U.S. employer plan, instead of withholding 20%, the Plan is generally required to withhold 30% of the payment for federal income taxes. If the amount withheld exceeds the amount of tax you owe (as may happen if you do a 60-day rollover), you may request an income tax refund by filing Form 1040NR and attaching your Form 1042-S. See Form W-8BEN for claiming that you are entitled to a reduced rate of withholding under an income tax treaty. For more information, see also IRS Publication 519, U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens, and IRS Publication 515, Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities.

Other special rules

If a payment is one in a series of payments for less than 10 years, your choice whether to do a direct rollover will apply to all later payments in the series (unless you make a different choice for later payments).

If your payments for the year (only including payments from the designated Roth account in the Plan) are less than $200, the Plan is not required to allow you to do a direct rollover and is not required to withhold federal income taxes. However, you can do a 60-day rollover.

You may have special rollover rights if you recently served in the U.S. Armed Forces. For more information on special rollover rights related to the U.S. Armed Forces, see IRS Publication 3, Armed Forces' Tax Guide. You also may have special rollover rights if you were affected by a federally declared disaster (or similar event), or if you received a distribution on account of a disaster. For more information on special rollover rights related to disaster relief, see the IRS website at www.irs.gov.

Introduction

This booklet explains how a TSP account can be divided in an action for divorce, annulment, or legal separation, or garnished to satisfy a participant's past-due alimony or child support obligations.

In addition to providing information about certain legal processes, this booklet further identifies what the TSP must find in documents that grant a power of attorney (POA)—or in a guardianship or conservatorship order—that empowers someone other than a TSP participant to transact business with the TSP.

The TSP must also honor all qualifying federal tax levies as well as qualifying criminal restitution orders pursuant to the Mandatory Victims Restitution Act (MVRA). For detailed information on these two actions, see the TSP booklet Tax Rules about TSP Payments.

You can find points of contact at the end of this booklet.

Understanding the TSP

The Thrift Savings Plan (TSP) is a retirement savings and investment plan for federal civilian employees and uniformed services members, including the Ready Reserve. It is a defined contribution plan that offers the same types of savings and tax benefits that many private corporations offer their employees under 401(k) plans.

For most civilian federal employees hired after 1983, the TSP is one part of a three-part retirement system that also includes Social Security and the Federal Employees' Retirement System (FERS) basic annuity.

For civilian employees hired before 1984 who did not switch to FERS, or for uniformed services members, including BRS participants, the TSP supplements the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) annuity or the military retired pay.

The FERS and CSRS annuity programs are administered by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM). Court orders related to these benefits should be directed to OPM.

The TSP maintains separate accounts for civilians, uniformed services members, and beneficiary participants. Therefore, if a participant has more than one type of TSP account, court orders and legal processes must identify each account separately, even if more than one account is addressed in a single court order or legal process. The terms "civilian," "uniformed services member," and/or "beneficiary participant" must be used to identify the appropriate account. If a participant has multiple beneficiary participant accounts, the court order or legal process must specify the last 4 digits of the deceased participant's Social Security number (SSN). Pages 17 and 18 explain the special rules that apply to uniformed services accounts and beneficiary participant accounts.

Certain TSP account information is available to spouses. Spouses and former spouses and their attorneys are entitled to the following information with a written request under the Privacy Act:

- the participant's (or beneficiary participant's) account balance;
- the participant's outstanding loan balance, if any; and
- annual or quarterly statements.

The TSP cannot require a subpoena to release information where it is not otherwise required by the Privacy Act.

However, the TSP will not provide personal information, such as the participant's address, date of birth, or SSN.

Requests for account information must be in writing and directed to the Court Order Center on tsp.gov. Learn how to submit documentation on the "Contact the TSP" page at the end of this booklet. Requests should

- provide the participant's name and the last four digits of the SSN;
- identify the individual requesting the information and describe his or her relationship to the participant;
- describe the information needed; and
- state the purpose for which the information is being requested.

Dividing a TSP Account in an Action for Divorce, Annulment, or Legal Separation

A TSP account can be divided by means of

- a court decree of divorce, annulment, or legal separation; or
- a court order or court-approved property settlement agreement resulting from such a decree.

A court order may be issued at any stage of a divorce, annulment, or legal separation proceeding. The TSP calls such a document a "retirement benefits court order" or "court order."

> To be honored by the TSP, a court order must meet the requirements found in 5 United States Code (U.S.C.) §§ 8435(c) and 8467, and 5 Code of Federal Regulations (C.F.R.) part 1653, subpart A.

Note: The participant is the federal civilian employee, uniformed services member, or beneficiary participant who owns the TSP account that is subject to division. The payee is the individual or organization who is the intended recipient of the court-ordered payment.

The TSP will only review a complete copy of a court order. To be complete, a court order must contain all pages and attachments. It also must provide (or be accompanied by a document that provides)

- the last four digits of the participant's Social Security number (SSN);
- the name and mailing address of each payee;
- the SSN of the payee; and
- if the court order is written in a language other than English, a certified English language translation of the entire court order.

The rules for Qualified Domestic Relations Orders (QDROs) that apply to private sector retirement plans do not apply to the TSP. The TSP is not covered by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA), which governs private sector plans. The TSP will evaluate such an order under the applicable laws and regulations.

General Requirements for a Qualifying Retirement Benefits Court Order

A qualifying retirement benefits court order (RBCO) must meet the following requirements or the court order will be denied:

- be a court order, judgment, or decree certified and signed by a judge or other state-approved court official.
- relate to the alimony payments or marital property rights of a spouse or former spouse, or to the support of a child or other dependent of a TSP participant.
- specify the plan name as the "Thrift Savings Plan." Variations like "Thrift savings account" or "Federal benefits" are not acceptable.
- specify the amount or percentage of benefits to be paid, the calculation date, and the payment method.
- The RBCO must also include:
  - Name
  - Last known mailing address
  - Last 4 digits of the participant's SSN
  - Full SSN of the payee

An RBCO cannot exceed the participant's account balance or request a payment that is already obligated to another payee based on a previous court order.

TSP-Specific Requirements for a Qualifying Retirement Benefits Court Order

In addition to the general requirements, an RBCO must follow the TSP requirements and guidelines below to be processed.

- If the participant has multiple TSP accounts, the court order must specify which account it relates to, including a beneficiary TSP account. See "Special Rules for Beneficiary Participant Accounts" on page 18 for more information.
- The court order must specify an entitlement date to calculate the payee's award based on the market value of the participant's vested account balance.

- The entitlement date cannot be in the future.
- The award must be a dollar amount or percentage of the participant's vested account balance as of the entitlement date. If the payee is awarded more money than the participant's vested account balance at the time the award is transferred to a temporary asset transfer account, the payee will receive the entire available balance.
- Earnings and losses will be paid on all payee awards from the date the funds are moved into the temporary asset transfer account until the disbursement.
- The court order can state whether to include or exclude earnings and losses from the account's entitlement date until the date the payee's temporary asset transfer account is established. If the court order awards earnings and losses, the TSP will calculate the amount.
- The award will be distributed proportionally from all TSP investment funds and contribution sources in the participant's account.
- If the participant's core funds do not cover the awarded amount, Mutual Fund Window funds will be used to cover the remaining amount. The core funds are depleted first before the Mutual Fund Window assets are liquidated to cover the awarded amount.
- The court order may include or exclude the outstanding loan balance from the participant's account before determining the payee's award. If the order does not mention any outstanding loan balance, the awarded amount will be determined from the gross account balance.
- The court order cannot make the payee responsible for repaying the participant's outstanding loan.

> The participant will pay a $600 RBCO processing fee when the TSP receives the initial court order, unless the court order specifically allocates the fee to the parties in a different manner.

For more information about any of these requirements, contact the TSP using one of the ThriftLine options listed at the end of this booklet.

The Effects of a Court Order on a TSP Account

A court order can be used to prevent a participant from withdrawing from a TSP account during a divorce action. Upon receiving a court order related to divorce, annulment, or legal separation, the TSP will "freeze" the participant's account if:

- the court order names the "Thrift Savings Plan" and states that the participant may not obtain a TSP loan or withdrawal; or
- the court order claims to divide a participant's TSP account.

Once an account is frozen, the participant cannot request a new loan or withdrawal until the court action is resolved. The participant will still be able to perform other account transactions, including changing investments and making loan payments.

> The TSP will not freeze an account in response to anything other than the court orders described here.

The TSP follows four steps in response to a court order:

Step 1. The TSP will freeze the participant's account immediately after receiving a qualifying RBCO.

Step 2. If a court order submission is reviewed and found to be incomplete, the TSP will remove the freeze.

If a court order does not qualify, the TSP will remove the freeze 18 months after the decision letter date.

Step 3. When the TSP receives a complete court order, the TSP will freeze (or retain the freeze on) the participant's account and evaluate the court order to determine whether it is an RBCO and how to divide the account.

Step 4. The TSP will send a decision letter to the participant and other relevant parties after evaluating the court order. The letter will explain how the court order will affect the participant's account.

The party responsible for paying federal income tax on the distribution will receive tax reporting and withholding information from the TSP.

If the payee is the current or former spouse of the participant, the payee will also receive information about the option to transfer the payment to a traditional IRA, a Roth IRA, or an eligible employer plan. The transfer option does not apply to court-ordered payments made from beneficiary participant accounts.

The freeze will be removed from the participant's TSP account as follows:

- If the account was frozen because the TSP received an incomplete court order, the freeze will be removed if a complete copy of the order is not received within 18 months of the TSP's written request.
- If the account was frozen in response to a court order issued to preserve the existing status (a freeze order), the freeze will be removed when the TSP receives a court order that specifically removes the freeze, or when the TSP receives a court order that requires a payment from the TSP.
- If the account was frozen due to a court order that requires payment from the TSP, the freeze will be removed when it is reviewed and found to be incomplete.
- If the court order does not meet the qualifying criteria, the account will stay frozen for 18 months starting from when the decision letter is dated informing the parties that the order does not qualify. However, the freeze can be lifted earlier if the TSP receives signed and notarized letters from both parties stating that the freeze can be removed.

For death benefit purposes, your designated beneficiary will receive your account, even if you divorce. Consequently, as your life situation changes, you may want to review and update you beneficiary designation.

To designate or change a beneficiary, log in to My Account on tsp.gov.

Garnishing a TSP Account for a Participant's Alimony or Child Support Debt

A TSP account can be garnished with a writ, order, summons, or other similar document that acts to enforce a participant's child support or alimony obligation. The TSP calls such a document a "legal process."

> To be honored by the TSP, a legal process must meet the requirements found at 5 U.S.C. § 8437(e)(3) and 5 C.F.R. part 1653, subpart B.

The TSP will only review a complete copy of a legal process. To be complete, it must contain all pages and attachments and provide (or be accompanied by) a document that provides:

- the last four digits of the participant's Social Security number (SSN);
- the name and mailing address of each payee;
- if the current or former spouse of the participant is a payee, the full SSN of the spouse-payee;
- if the current or former spouse of the participant is a payee and the court order requires the payment to be mailed in care of a third party, the state of legal residence of the spouse-payee); and
- if the legal process is written in a language other than English, a certified English language translation of the entire legal process.

A legal process must meet three requirements according to 5 C.F.R. § 1653.12:

- It must be issued by a court or administrative agency of competent jurisdiction in any of the 50 United States, the District of Columbia, or a territory or possession of the United States, by a court in a foreign country with which the United States has entered into an agreement to honor such processes, or by an official, pursuant to an order of such a court or administrative agency of competent jurisdiction or pursuant to State or local law.

- The court order must explicitly name the "Thrift Savings Plan" to be valid. Terms like "all retirement benefits" or "government benefits" are not sufficient.
- The court order must either specify a dollar amount to be paid from the participant's TSP account for child support or alimony, or it must instruct the TSP to freeze the account until an order is received for such payment. The TSP will not comply with a court order that awards a percentage or fraction of the account or requires multiple payments over time.

A participant who owes alimony or child support can have the TSP account frozen if the TSP receives a legal process that meets the requirements above.

> The participant will pay a $600 RBCO processing fee when the TSP receives the initial court order unless the court order specifically allocates the fee to the parties in a different manner.

The TSP follows four steps in response to a legal process:

Step 1. The TSP will freeze the participant's account when they receive a qualifying legal process.

Step 2. If the legal process is reviewed and found to be incomplete, the TSP will remove the freeze when the notice is sent to the participant and payee.

Step 3. Upon receiving a complete legal process, the TSP will determine if it is a qualifying order.

Step 4. The TSP will send a decision letter to the participant and other relevant parties after evaluating the court order. The letter will explain how the court order will affect the participant's account and when the freeze will be removed. It will also explain how the award will be calculated and distributed. If the legal process is not qualifying, the letter will provide an explanation.

The party responsible for paying federal income tax on the distribution will receive tax reporting and withholding information. If the payee is the current or former spouse of the participant, the payee will also receive information about the option to roll over the payment to a traditional IRA, a Roth IRA, or an eligible employer plan. The rollover option does not apply to court-ordered payments made from beneficiary participant accounts.

If an order names a spouse or former spouse as a payee, any portion of the award distributed as a cash payment will be treated as taxable income to the payee. If the intent of the parties is to award a payment for child support arrears that is taxable to the participant, the payee must be identified in the court order as the dependent child or as a state child support enforcement agency.

If the participant's account was frozen after the TSP received a complete qualifying legal process, the freeze will be removed in the following ways:

- If the legal process requires a payment from the TSP, the freeze will be removed after the TSP disburses the payment.
- If the legal process does not require a payment from the TSP, the freeze will be removed immediately after the TSP informs the parties in writing that the document is not a qualifying legal process.

Some states allow a two-step garnishment process. The first step consists of an order to withhold, which freezes the assets of the person who owes money. The second step consists of an order to deliver, which requires the TSP to pay a specified amount of the participant's account to a third party.

If the account was frozen upon receipt of an order to withhold, the freeze will be removed:

- upon receipt of an order removing the freeze;
- after payment according to a qualifying order to deliver; or
- after the TSP informs the parties in writing that the document is not a qualifying legal process.

How the TSP Calculates an Entitlement

For a Retirement Benefits Court Order

If a court order awards a dollar amount or percentage of a TSP account as of a specific day, the payee's entitlement is determined based on that day's total account balance.

If a court order specifies a dollar amount or percentage of a TSP account without specifying a date, the TSP will use the effective date of the court order.

If a court order specifies a fixed dollar amount, the payee's entitlement is the lesser of the dollar amount stated or the vested account balance on the date the funds are moved into a temporary asset transfer account.

If a court order specifies a fixed dollar amount and a percentage of the account, the payee's entitlement is the specified dollar amount, regardless of the percentage's calculation.

A court order cannot require the TSP to pay more than the participant's total vested account balance. Therefore, if the payee's entitlement exceeds the participant's vested account balance at the time of payment, the funds are moved into a temporary asset transfer account.

For a Legal Process

The payee's entitlement is determined based on the participant's vested account balance at the time of payment. The legal process can only award a specific dollar amount, so the TSP will pay the lesser of the specified amount or the participant's vested account balance.

Effect of a Loan

For purposes of computing a payee's entitlement, the dollar amount of an outstanding TSP loan is included in the account balance as of the entitlement date, unless the court order specifically states otherwise. Therefore, a court order does not need to mention a TSP loan unless the outstanding loan amount should be excluded from the award calculation.

For example, assuming a participant has a $10,000 account balance and also has a $5,000 outstanding loan, the total account balance for the purpose of computing a payee's entitlement would be $15,000. This is because funds borrowed by a participant are not considered to be withdrawn from the account and are expected to be paid back to the account by the participant.

Note: If the court order does not address any outstanding loan balance, the entitlement will be determined from the gross account balance. Also, the court order cannot give the payee the responsibility for repaying the participant's outstanding loan.

Earnings and Losses

The TSP will not credit the entitlement with investment earnings unless the court order specifically states otherwise. The court order cannot specify an earnings rate.

If the court awards earnings, the TSP will calculate them by

- Identifying the beginning balance, ending balance, and cash flows between these balances from the entitlement date to the payment date;
- Calculating the rate of return that adjusts the beginning balance, accounting for all cash flows, to match the ending balance; and
- Multiplying the payee's award amount by the resulting rate of return.

Tax Treatment and Rollover of Payments

Tax Treatment

The tax treatment of a payment made under a qualifying court order or legal process depends on the type of money contributed to the TSP account. A TSP account may consist of a traditional (pre-tax) balance, a Roth (after-tax) balance, or both.

Contributions to a traditional balance are made before taxes, so the participant does not pay taxes on their own contributions, agency/service contributions, or earnings. Therefore, taxes will be owed on the traditional portion of a payment made under a qualifying court order or legal process.

On the other hand, contributions to a Roth balance are made after tax, meaning the participant has already paid taxes on those contributions. The portion of a payment that comes from Roth contributions is not subject to taxation. Furthermore, as long as specific rules set by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) are followed, no taxes will be owed on the earnings from Roth contributions.[1]

> Any payment made under a qualifying order will be disbursed proportionally from any traditional and Roth balances in the participant's TSP account. A court order or legal process cannot specify the type of balance from which the payment can be taken.

If a payment is made to the current or former spouse of the participant, the taxable portion of that payment is reported to the IRS as gross income for the spouse payee in the tax year when the payment is made. This is true unless the funds are rolled over to a traditional IRA, a Roth IRA, or an eligible employer plan. It's important to note that this applies even if the payment is intended to fulfill child or spousal support arrears.

If the payment is made to someone other than the current or former spouse of the participant (e.g., a child or a support enforcement agency),

1 The tax treatment of Roth earnings depends on whether those earnings are qualified. Earnings become qualified, and therefore paid tax-free, when two conditions have been met: 1) 5 years have passed since January 1 of the calendar year in which the first Roth contribution was made, and 2) the participant has reached age 59½, has a permanent disability, or has died.

the taxable portion of the payment is reported to the IRS as gross income for the participant for the tax year in which the payment is made.

A payment in response to a retirement benefits court order or legal process is not subject to an early withdrawal penalty tax. Such distributions are exempt from the early withdrawal penalty tax under the Internal Revenue Code.

For more detailed information about tax treatment of payments, see the TSP booklet Tax Rules about TSP Payments.

Rollovers

All or part of a payment to a current or former spouse under a court order or legal process may be rolled over to a traditional IRA, a Roth IRA, or an eligible employer plan. Court-ordered payments made from a beneficiary participant account (BPA) may not be transferred or rolled over. For more information about BPAs, see the "Special Rules for Beneficiary Participant Accounts" on page 18.

If the current or former spouse has a TSP account, they can roll over all or part of their payment to that TSP account.

It's important to note that tax-exempt balances from a uniformed services member's TSP account cannot be rolled over to another TSP account. See "Special Rules for Uniformed Services Accounts" on page 17.

In situations where a court order directs the TSP to send a payment to a third-party recipient, such as the payee's attorney, the current or former spouse of the participant still has the right to ask the TSP to roll over the payment to a traditional IRA, a Roth IRA, or an eligible employer plan. This means that even if a court order specifies that the TSP should mail the payment to a third-party recipient on behalf of the current or former spouse, the TSP will honor the spouse's request to roll over the payment.

> A payment that is properly made cannot be returned to the TSP. (See 5 C.F.R. § 1653.5(l).)

Method and Timing of Payments

Method of Payment

The payment will be made pro rata (proportionally) from any traditional and Roth balances in the participant's account, and from all TSP investments in which the participant is invested. This will be based on the balance in each fund on the payment date and will include all contribution sources (i.e., employee contributions and employing agency or service contributions, if applicable).

A TSP payment is made by United States Treasury check directly to the payee or by direct deposit via electronic funds transfer (EFT) to the payee's financial institution. However, the direct deposit cannot be used to roll over a payment or a portion of a payment to an IRA or eligible employer plan.

Once the court order is qualified, the payee's assigned entitlement will be established in a temporary asset transfer account. The payee becomes eligible for payment as soon as administratively feasible after qualification. It's important to note that the court order cannot provide specific payment or rollover instructions. The payee must make a request for distribution or rollover through the TSP by logging in to the temporary asset transfer account or contacting the ThriftLine. A court order payment must be a one-time total distribution. If the payee is a child support agency, a temporary asset transfer account will not be created.

Timing

The TSP typically disburses a payment 60 days after issuing the decision letter that explains how the court order or legal process will affect the participant's account (30 days for a child support payment). However, if the payee is the current or former spouse of the participant, the payee can request an earlier payment by

- waiving the tax notification period;
- making a federal income tax withholding election; or
- requesting a rollover of the payment to a traditional IRA, a Roth IRA, or an eligible employer plan. (Payments from a beneficiary participant account cannot be rolled over.)

If the payment is made to a state child support enforcement agency, the disbursement generally occurs 30 days after the TSP issues a decision letter.

When the payee is the current or former spouse, the participant cannot elect additional federal income tax withholding.

In no case will payment be made earlier than 30 days after the date of the TSP decision letter.

If the payee dies before the TSP makes a payment, the payment will go to the payee's estate unless the court order specifies otherwise. This distribution will be reported as income to the estate. If the participant dies before the payment date, the order will be honored as long as it is submitted to the TSP before the account is closed.

Disputing a Payment

Once the TSP issues a decision letter regarding a court order, it is considered a final administrative action by the TSP. Court-ordered payments that are made in accordance with TSP rules cannot be reversed.

The only way to cancel or suspend a pending court-ordered payment is to obtain a valid new or amended court order, motion, or restraining order specifically addressing the relevant case. If there is a dispute with any part of the decision letter, the concerned party should contact the TSP immediately and submit a signed letter of dispute containing their current phone number and mailing address. The letter of dispute must reach the TSP no later than 25 days from the date of the decision letter.

Upon receiving a letter of dispute, the TSP will hold the payment until the scheduled payment date. If a valid new or amended court order, motion, or restraining order has not been received by the payment date, the TSP will disburse the payment, which cannot be reversed.

Special Rules for Uniformed Services Accounts

When a participant has more than one type of account, such as a civilian, uniformed services, and a beneficiary participant account, a single court order or legal process can affect all of the accounts. However, each account must be specifically identified in the court order or legal process.

> If the court order or legal process requires payment from more than one TSP account, it must clearly describe the payee's entitlement for each account.

TSP accounts for uniformed services members may include contributions from pay that is subject to the combat zone tax exclusion. These tax-exempt contributions remain tax-exempt even when disbursed from the account through a qualifying court order or legal process.

However, the earnings on tax-exempt contributions may or may not be taxable. Earnings on tax-exempt contributions made to a traditional balance are taxable upon distribution. On the other hand, earnings on tax-exempt contributions made to a Roth balance are not taxable if they meet the IRS rules for qualified earnings (see the footnote on page 13).

If a payment is made from a traditional balance that consists of both taxable and tax-exempt funds, the payment will be disbursed proportionally from the taxable and tax-exempt amounts. It's important to note that a court order or legal process cannot specify that a payment be made exclusively from tax-exempt contributions.

If the payment is eligible to roll over and the payee wants to roll over a payment that includes tax-exempt funds, these are the options:

- If the award contains a tax-exempt contribution from a traditional balance, the tax-exempt portion can be rolled over to a traditional IRA, a Roth IRA, or certain eligible employer plans, but only if the IRA or plan accepts tax-exempt funds.
- If the current or former spouse decides to roll over only a portion of the payment from a traditional balance into an IRA or eligible employer plan, the taxable portion of the payment will be rolled over to the IRA or plan first. Amounts that are not rolled over will be paid directly to the payee.

If a payee wants to roll over a payment to an existing TSP account, any tax-exempt balances coming from a uniformed services TSP account cannot be rolled over to another TSP account.

For more detailed information regarding the rollover of payments that include tax-exempt funds, see the TSP booklet Tax Rules about TSP Payments on tsp.gov.

Special Rules for Beneficiary Participant Accounts

Beneficiary participant accounts are created for spouses who are beneficiaries of deceased TSP participants. Court orders can be processed against these beneficiary participant accounts, but special rules apply. Payments made from a beneficiary participant account through a court order cannot be rolled over. Therefore, if a beneficiary participant remarries, their new spouse will not have the option to roll over any court-ordered payments received from the beneficiary participant account. The taxable portion of the payment will be fully subject to taxes in the year it is received.

When a beneficiary participant account contains tax-exempt money, the money remains tax-exempt when it is distributed from a beneficiary participant account in accordance with a qualifying court order or legal process.

When a participant has more than one type of account, such as a civilian, a uniformed services, and/or a beneficiary participant account, a single court order or legal process can affect all the accounts. However, each court order or legal process must specifically identify from which type of account the payment is to be made. If a participant has more than one beneficiary participant account, the court order or legal process must

- specify the account type of the beneficiary participant account (uniformed services or civilian);
- include the deceased participant's name; and
- include the last four digits of the deceased participant's Social Security number.

Tips for Avoiding the Delay or Denial of Awards

Common errors or omissions can sometimes result in the delay or denial of a court-ordered award. To avoid them, use the checklist below.

- Provide the signature of the appropriate judicial official.
- Include the payee's current address and, if the payee is a spouse or former spouse, their Social Security number (SSN). The payee's date of birth is also required to create a temporary asset transfer account. If the payee's information is not provided within the court order, legal process, or any addendum, it may be submitted by the payee, participant, or either party's attorney of record.
- Include the participant's current address and last four digits of participant's SSN.
- Ensure the court order or legal process refers specifically to the "Thrift Savings Plan" by name.
- Ensure the dollar amount of the award (or percentage, if a retirement benefits court order) is clearly stated.
- Ensure that the court order specifically states that it is issued in accordance with the domestic relations law of any of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, or the Virgin Islands, or by any Indian court as defined by 25 U.S.C. § 1301(3).
- Ensure the court order or legal process specifically identifies the account from which the award is to be paid using the terms "civilian," "uniformed services," or "beneficiary participant," if the participant has more than one type of TSP account.
- If the spouse payee wants to roll over a payment to a traditional IRA, Roth IRA, or eligible employer plan, ensure the request is submitted promptly to the TSP. Failure to do so will result in receiving a check, and the mandatory 20% tax withholding will apply to any taxable amounts. Once a payment is disbursed, the TSP cannot reverse it.

Giving a Power of Attorney (POA)

A TSP participant or payee may use a POA to authorize another person to act on their behalf with respect to property decisions (including retirement benefits). The TSP participant or payee who gives the POA is called the "principal," and the individual who is authorized to act on behalf of the principal is called the "agent" or "attorney-in-fact."

A POA can be either general or specific:

- A general POA grants the agent unlimited authority to handle TSP-related matters, such as making withdrawals, taking loans, or modifying beneficiaries.
- A specific or special POA gives limited authority to the agent and clearly states the actions they can take on behalf of the principal, like accessing account information or performing specific financial transactions.

When signing documents on behalf of the principal, the agent should sign their name followed by "POA for" and the principal's name. When contacting the TSP on behalf of the principal, the agent will need to provide information about the approved POA for verification.

Springing POA

A "springing POA" becomes effective only after a specific event has taken place. A springing POA must be submitted with evidence that the event it describes has already occurred.

For example, for a springing POA, the TSP participant might sign a statement saying, "This POA is effective when I become incapacitated or disabled as documented by a physician." In such a case, acceptable evidence would be a letter from the participant's physician clearly stating that the participant has become "incapacitated" or "disabled."

You can find ways to submit POA documentation on the contact page at the end of this booklet.

The participant is still able to conduct business on the account when there is a valid POA on file.

Court Appointments of Guardians or Conservators

A court order that authorizes an individual to act on behalf of an incapacitated or incapable person is known as a guardianship order or a conservatorship order. For the purposes of the TSP, the incapacitated or incapable person is the participant, the beneficiary, or a payee. That person is also referred to as the "ward." The person appointed by the court to act on the ward's behalf is called a "guardian" or "conservator."

> Once a guardianship or conservatorship order is approved, the TSP will not accept any documents the participant signs after the date of the court order.

A guardianship or conservatorship order must be issued by a court in one of the 50 United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, or the U.S. Virgin Islands, or by any Indian court as defined by 25 U.S.C. 1301(3). Before the TSP can honor a guardianship or conservatorship order, it must be signed by a judge or other authorized judicial official. Additionally, you must provide evidence that all the conditions stated in the order have been met. For instance, if the order specifies that it is only effective upon the issuance of letters of guardianship, you must include those letters along with the order. (See 5 C.F.R. § 1690.13(a)(3).) If the jurisdiction issues letters of guardianship or conservatorship, both the letters and the original order must be submitted for review.

Similar to a power of attorney (POA), a guardianship or conservatorship order can grant an individual either general or specific powers. For example, a guardianship or conservatorship order with general power might appoint the guardian or conservator to handle the ward's overall estate or personal property or conduct business transactions on their behalf. However, a guardianship or conservatorship order with specific power would limit the guardian's or conservator's authority. For example, it might appoint them only to access information about the participant's TSP account or to borrow or withdraw funds from that account.

Guardianship and conservatorship orders vary significantly across different jurisdictions.

Glossary of Terms

Account Balance—The dollar amount in a participant's TSP account.

Award—An amount of money granted to an individual as determined in a court order.

Benefit—A payment from a TSP account that includes both contributed money and earned interest.

Child Support Court Order (CSCO)—A writ, order, summons, or similar document that acts to enforce a child support obligation by garnishing a participant's TSP account.

Conservatorship—A court order that authorizes an individual to act on behalf of an incapacitated or incapable person.

Effective Date—The date a court order was entered by the clerk of the court, filed by the clerk of the court, or signed by the judge.

Entitlement Date—The date specified in a court order for purposes of calculating the payee's award. If the court order does not contain a specific date, the TSP recordkeeper will use the effective date of the court order.

Guardianship—A court order that authorizes an individual to act on behalf of an incapacitated or incapable person.

Legal Process—A writ, order, summons, or other similar document that acts to enforce a participant's child support or alimony obligation.

Participant—A federal civilian employee, uniformed services member, or beneficiary participant who owns the TSP account that is subject to division.

Payee—Any spouse, former spouse, child, or other dependent of a participant who is recognized by a Retirement Benefits Court Order or Child Support Court Order as having a right to receive all or a portion of the benefits payable under the TSP.

Payment date—The date on which the TSP establishes a temporary account for the payee.

Power of Attorney (POA)—A legal document that authorizes one person to conduct legal and financial business on behalf of the participant. The participant is still able to conduct business on the account when there is a valid POA on file.

Retirement Benefits Court Order (RBCO)—Any legal decision about child support, alimony payments, or marital property rights made under state domestic relations laws for a participant's spouse, child, or dependent.

Temporary Asset Transfer Account—A temporary TSP account established for the payee by the transfer of money from a participant's vested account balance according to the terms of a Retirement Benefits Court Order.

Vested Account Balance—The dollar amount the participant has a nonforfeitable right to receive from the TSP.

Current as of January 01, 2024

(t) 10-percent additional tax on early distributions from qualified retirement plans.--

(1) Imposition of additional tax.--If any taxpayer receives any amount from a qualified retirement plan (as defined in section 4974(c)), the taxpayer's tax under this chapter for the taxable year in which such amount is received shall be increased by an amount equal to 10 percent of the portion of such amount which is includible in gross income.

(2) Subsection not to apply to certain distributions.--Except as provided in paragraphs (3) and (4), paragraph (1) shall not apply to any of the following distributions:

(A) In general.--Distributions which are--

(i) made on or after the date on which the employee attains age 59 1/2,

(ii) made to a beneficiary (or to the estate of the employee) on or after the death of the employee,

(iii) attributable to the employee's being disabled within the meaning of subsection (m)(7),

(iv) part of a series of substantially equal periodic payments (not less frequently than annually) made for the life (or life expectancy) of the employee or the joint lives (or joint life expectancies) of such employee and his designated beneficiary,

(v) made to an employee after separation from service after attainment of age 55,

(vi) dividends paid with respect to stock of a corporation which are described in section 404(k),

(vii) made on account of a levy under section 6331 on the qualified retirement plan,

(viii) payments under a phased retirement annuity under section 8366a(a)(5) 3 or 8412a(a)(5) of title 5, United States Code, or a composite retirement annuity under section 8366a(a)(1) 3 or 8412a(a)(1) of such title, or

(ix) attributable to withdrawal of net income attributable to a contribution which is distributed pursuant to section 408(d)(4).

For purposes of clause (iv), periodic payments shall not fail to be treated as substantially equal merely because they are amounts received as an annuity, and such periodic payments shall be deemed to be substantially equal if they are payable over a period described in clause (iv) and satisfy the requirements applicable to annuity payments under section 401(a)(9).

(B) Medical expenses.--Distributions made to the employee (other than distributions described in subparagraph (A), (C), or (D)) to the extent such distributions do not exceed the amount allowable as a deduction under section 213 to the employee for amounts paid during the taxable year for medical care (determined without regard to whether the employee itemizes deductions for such taxable year).

(C) Payments to alternate payees pursuant to qualified domestic relations orders.--Any distribution to an alternate payee pursuant to a qualified domestic relations order (within the meaning of section 414(p)(1)).

This will confirm our telephone conversation on Friday about the addition that your wife's attorney had asked to add to the temporary order.

The only things they were asking to be added were the following on a temporary basis:

The Wife is granted the following personal property from the marital home:

(a) Two (2) televisions;

(b) Bean bag chair;

(c) iVac machine;

(d) Electric hot pot;

(e) Deep freezer;

(f) Vacuum;

(g) Vac/Mop;

(h) Kitchen utensils/knick-knacks;

(i) Her mother's personal effects;

(j) Her personal effects;

(k) Holiday decorations;

(l) Household decorations.

The Wife shall be entitled to return to the residence on Saturday, October 25, 2025, to retrieve the aforementioned personal property and the Husband shall not interfere with her ability to retrieve said items.

Your blanket refusal not to agree or negotiate to any of this I find, and the Court would to be extremely unreasonable. Not to allow your wife access to her personal effects, her mother's personal effects a couple a TV when there are others appears to be selfish. What use do you have for her personal effects or her mother's personal items? I understand you have a number of TVs then why can she have one or two? A judge would ask you how many TVs can you watch at one time?

Your comments that I was yelling at you the other day are out of place. I was in my truck traveling down the interstate and our reception was bad. I heard half of what you were saying. Yes, I talk loud and aggressively. If that's not the type of attorney, you want feel free to seek council elsewhere and I will be happy to refund $1500.00 of your money. As to your comment about what my job is it surely is not to sit meekly by and be a yes man to you. My job is to get you out of this situation and put you in the best position possible. It is my job to prepare you if it is necessary to go before the Court and not let you paint yourself as an unreasonable individual. I need to be able to convince you into not saying things or taking positions that I think will harm you based upon my years of experience. If it takes an aggressive or harsh tone to accomplish this, so be it. I find that this method works best with people similar to you. Say the wrong thing and the Judge will hand you your head. You must understand all property accumulated during the course of the marriage is subject to equitable distribution. As I have told you, this means in most people 's eyes a 50-50 split. No one can force you to live together anymore; therefore, when you have problems with temporarily splitting marital property with your wife so that she can out outfit a portion of her apartment that the children will also stay at times tend to make you look selfish and self-centered. A Judge will ask why should you be entitled they have all the marital property around you and not afford your wife and children the use of a portion of it since it is maritally owned. That is the point I was trying to make with you. Perhaps your attitude is caused by your recent mental, autistic and other diagnosis, but I'm not a mental health provider. My job is to mold you into a witness that will be successful on the stand and not say things that the Court might find insulting. Yes, as you called me, I'm a bulldog, but people hire me for my aggressiveness and other quantities that have been proven successful over the years.

It is important to understand where we are in your case. All the temporary order does is put things temporarily in place until we go to a final hearing. A final hearing will not occur until after we have gone to mediation or reach an agreement. This could take months. You chose to quit and $97,000 a year job back in April and not work since then. You are without a source of income. I explain to you; the judge can easily compute income to you as to what he thinks you can earn. All your family bill payments, including your mortgage, are at least three months behind. The original offer that they gave was acceptable by you with the exception immediately selling the house within 60 days. The house has at least 200,00.00 of equity in it. This was an option to take immediate action to attempt to take care of the debts. You did not approve of this and so we were able to negotiate it so as to allow you to remain in the house for 180 days and give you a chance to refinance the house and buy your wife's equitable share out upon closing. The parties would also get immediate assess to the 60K of TSP money. Considering the fact that you have no source of income at the current time this was what us attorneys would call a sweetheart deal for you. This does not even take into consideration that your child support payment would only be in the $140.00 range per month.

Friday you asked what my plan is and then you contended I did not have a plan, but I felt we have a very good upon leaving Court on Thursday. There is a plan already in place for you get the TSP money, pay the bills temporarily, and refinance the house. You do not have time with being 3 months behind on your mortgage to sit by and wait. Go out and find a job. I think you are facing problems if you are relying upon getting some type of federal disability retirement when you voluntarily took the deal offered to you in April and now you have recently received your diagnosis. Furthermore, you cannot be sure of being successful on your mortgage assistance application. Lastly, some of the other attorneys I have talked to you have the same opinion as I that there should be no reason why you cannot get access to the TSP money. You told me that you applied for a hardship withdrawal. This might be messing up your ability to access these funds. If this cannot be done the other options are to put the house up for sale immediately or you can file bankruptcy to stay all collection proceeding.

Apparently, you don’t like my manner, and it might be better that you go elsewhere. If that is what you want, call my office and we will immediately refund you $1,500.00. Let me once again say you got everything you wanted in the temporary order which will be signed by the judge based upon what we had agreed to without the requested additions.

To: Joseph East <joeeast@att.net>

Dear Joe,

This email serves as a formal response to your correspondence and subsequent phone call, and provides necessary factual corrections regarding my financial and medical status, which must be clearly reflected in our strategy.

1. Temporary Personal Property (Confirmed)

To be clear, I have no problem with my wife retrieving the items. My only concern on Friday was being asked to agree to a formal order without seeing the written language. I agree to the temporary release of all personal property listed in your email [(a) through (l)]. I consent to my wife returning to the residence on Saturday, October 25, 2025, to retrieve these items, and I will not interfere.

Please inform her attorney immediately to finalize this point.

2. TSP Funds: The Only Solution is an RBCO

I am fully committed to immediately accessing the marital TSP funds to pay the three-month delinquent mortgage and other joint debts. I have no objection to my wife receiving her share.

As I previously stated, a standard financial hardship withdrawal is insufficient for this purpose. The only proper mechanism for the division of a Thrift Savings Plan (TSP) in a divorce is a Retirement Benefits Court Order (RBCO).

We must immediately prioritize drafting and filing an RBCO to compel the release of funds to pay the debts and to transfer my wife's equitable share.

I require confirmation that we are proceeding with an RBCO, not a hardship withdrawal, as this is the only process that can provide the necessary amount.

3. Factual Status on Income, Employment, and Disability

Your assumptions about my income and motivation are factually incorrect and must be addressed:

Income/Employment: While I am applying for Federal Disability Retirement, I am also actively looking for work in the private sector to provide income for my family. My plan is not to "sit by and wait," but to pursue all avenues of lawful income while managing my medical conditions.

Federal Disability Status: The issue is not an "attitude" or a lack of planning. The medical documentation being submitted to the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) for my disability application clearly shows I am unable to perform the high-stress duties of my former federal position.

Cause of Debt: My family's financial delinquency is due to my loss of income, compounded by my wife's actions which initially blocked my access to the marital funds.

Children and Stability: The facts regarding the children are also essential. I must document that until the time of separation, I was the parent primarily responsible for the children's morning routines and school readiness every day. Critically, the children's entire social network is centered around the marital home, with all their friends living within blocks of the residence. This community tie is a powerful argument for maintaining the children's stability in this home and must be utilized in any orders related to placement.

4. Attorney-Client Relationship

My expectation is that you will aggressively advocate for my best legal position, which includes using the available medical and financial evidence to our advantage. However, professional communication is non-negotiable.

Please be advised that your comment suggesting my attitude is "caused by my recent mental, autistic and other diagnosis" is both professionally inappropriate and irrelevant to our legal strategy. Going forward, I expect communication to be focused solely on the legal facts of the case, and I require a professional tone.

I assume we will now move forward with the immediate drafting of the RBCO and the paperwork confirming the temporary release of property.

I would also like to reiterate that my wife was involved in a car accident shortly after the court order requiring us to pay for separate insurance, and the other party is filing a claim on my policy. This is a new marital liability that must be factored into the overall debt resolution strategy and the eventual division of assets.

Attache is a letter I sent to McGhan. Also attached is the order you did not receive and the handwritten offer.
Please call the person you are dealing with about the TSP and see if they have a forma that they want this order to be in. Or better yet, see if they can call me or I them and we can discuss the order. You might have to give permission for this to occur.

Jennifer,

Attached is a signed Temporary Order consenting to paragraph 11 addition. Wanda was out and when Mr. Johnson was contacted about the addition he had not been forwarded the order by the new secretary. His only objection was he had not seen the addition. There may be a problem with the TSP withdraw. Mr. Johnson says according to someone he has talked to that he only proper mechanism for the division of a Thrift Savings Plan (TSP) in a divorce is to use a Retirement Benefits Court Order (RBCO). He is fully committed to immediately accessing the marital TSP funds to pay the three-month delinquent mortgage and other joint debts. He further has no objection to your client receiving her share.
He says he previously tried a standard financial hardship withdrawal, but it would not go through. I guess he is talking about a QDRO. I will ask Mr. Johnson to call the person he is dealing with to see if there is some type of special order or format this representative wants. However, I have a divorce case with Jackie and last month we withdrew over 100K out of a governmental TSP plan with only the signatures of the spouses.

Lastly, Mr. Johnson says your client was involved in a car accident after last Thursday's hearing. Whose fault was it? Was someone hurt?

EXHIBIT E

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF CAMDEN COUNTY
STATE OF GEORGIA

CHRISTYN JOHNSON, Plaintiff,	)
-vs-	)	Civil Action No. 2025CV936
WILLIAM JOHNSON, Defendant.	)

CONSENT TEMPORARY ORDER

THIS CAUSE came on to be heard upon the Plaintiff Wife's Complaint for Divorce and the Defendant/Husband having been properly served and having filed an Answer, and with the parties being represented by counsel, and the Court being apprised of the parties having come to a temporary agreement, does hereby enter the following:

1.

The Court has jurisdiction of the parties to and the subject matter of this action.

2.

The parties shall share joint legal custody of the two (2) minor children of the parties, to-wit: SEBASTIAN JOHNSON, a male child born in 2016; and WILLOW JOHNSON, a female child, born in 2019. In the event of a disagreement as to any issue concerning the minor child's health, education, religious upbringing, or extracurricular activities, the Wife shall have tie-breaking authority over those decisions after first consulting with the Husband.

3.

The parties shall have joint physical custody of the minor children on a temporary basis, with the following parenting time schedule:

(a) The Wife shall have the minor children every Monday through Thursday overnight. The Husband shall have the minor children every Friday through Sunday overnight. Exchanges shall occur at 6:00 p.m., or as otherwise agreed by both parties. (Hereinafter referred to as the "regular weekday schedule").

(b) For the Thanksgiving holiday period, the regular weekday schedule outlined in Section (a) shall apply, with the exception that on Thanksgiving Day (11/27/2025), the Husband shall also have the children from 10:00 a.m. – 3:00 p.m. He shall be responsible for retrieving from and returning the children to the Wife for this visitation period.

(c) For the Christmas break holiday, the Husband shall have the children from 10:00 a.m. on December 21, through 10:00 a.m. on December 28, 2025.

(d) For the Christmas break holiday, the Wife shall have the children from 3:00 p.m. – 9:00 p.m. on Christmas Day (12/25/2025); and also from 10:00 a.m. on December 28, 2025, through 10:00 a.m. on January 4, 2026. Thereafter, the regular weekday schedule shall resume. For her Christmas Day visitation period, the Wife shall be responsible for retrieving from and returning the children to the Husband for this visitation period.

The Husband shall have temporary exclusive use and possession of the marital home located at 401 Powderhorn Road, Saint Marys, Georgia 31558. He shall be responsible for the mortgage, escrow, and all utilities. Because the mortgage is held by both parties, the Husband shall ensure that the mortgage and utility expenses are paid timely. The parties understand that the mortgage is currently 2-3 months behind as of the date of this Order. Beginning October 15, 2025, there shall be no further delinquencies or deferments on the mortgage.

5.

The Husband shall have one-hundred twenty (120) days to refinance the marital home, thus removing the Wife's financial obligation from the mortgage. To do so, the Husband shall be responsible for obtaining and paying for an independent appraisal on the home to determine its current fair market value. A copy of the appraisal shall be immediately forwarded to the Wife. The Wife shall be entitled to one-half the equity in the home, using the principal balance of the mortgage at the time of the refinance. Should the Husband be unable to refinance the home by February 14, 2026, it shall be listed for sale no later than February 15, 2026.

If the parties cannot agree on a realtor to list the property, the parties shall use Georgia-Kay Sutterfield with Coldwell Banker in Kingsland, Georgia. The listing price shall be determined by the realtor based on the market. The parties are to promptly sign and deliver any and all documents required to effectuate the sale of the home and shall accept any reasonable offer withing ninety-five percent (95%) of the home's then-listed selling price. If the home is listed for sale, the parties shall split the proceeds from the sale equally.

The Husband shall be allowed to cash out his Thrift Savings Plan ("TSP"). He shall cash out the total balance in the TSP account and provide the Wife a copy of the check received from the TSP Plan Administrator. The Wife will cooperate and sign any and all documents necessary to allow this cash out. From the TSP funds payout, the Wife shall be entitled to an exact fifty percent (50%) split. This sum shall be paid by the Husband to the Wife within twenty-four (24) hours of the Husband's receipt of the TSP funds. Further, within twenty-four (24) hours of receiving the TSP funds, the Husband, from his share of the funds, shall pay all the past-due mortgage payments, thereby curing the current mortgage delinquency.

7.

The Husband shall be responsible for curing the overdrawn balance in the parties' joint Navy Federal Credit Union financial account, which is currently over $500.00. This shall be done in immediately, but in no event later than the date that the Husband receives his share of the TSP funds.

8.

The Husband shall be responsible for his own car payment and insurance, the parties' cellphone service (until such time as the Wife obtains her own plan), his own debts and personal expenses. The Wife shall be responsible for her own car payment and insurance.

9.

The parties shall equally split expenses incurred on behalf of the children, such as: extracurricular activities, school events and activities, school lunches, and out-of-pocket medical/healthcare related expenses. The party incurring the expense shall send a copy of the receipt to the other party. That party shall have ten (10) days to reimburse the paying party their one-half share of said expense.

10.

The Wife earns $2.600.00 per month. The Husband is capable of earning $2,600.00 per month. Based on the timesharing split between the parties, the Husband is granted a parenting time deviation. Beginning November 1, 2025, the Husband shall pay to the Wife the sum of $145.00 in and for child support for the benefit of the minor children.

11.

The Wife is granted the following personal property from the marital home:

(a) Two (2) televisions;

(b) Bean bag chair;

(c) iVac machine;

(d) Electric hot pot;

(e) Deep freezer;

(f) Vacuum;

(g) Vac/Mop;

(h) Kitchen utensils/knick-knacks;

(i) Her mother's personal effects;

(j) Her personal effects;

(k) Holiday decorations;

(l) Household decorations.

The Wife shall be entitled to return to the residence on Saturday, October 25, 2025, to retrieve the aforementioned personal property and the Husband shall not interfere with her ability to retrieve said items.

12.

All remaining issues not addressed herein are reserved.

IMMEDIATE TERMINATION OF REPRESENTATION, DEMAND FOR FILE AND FULL REFUND: Johnson v. Johnson (Camden County Civil Action No. 2025CV936)

3 messages

Will Johnson <willyj1587@gmail.com> Sun, Oct 19, 2025 at 11:11 AM
To: Joseph East <joeeast@att.net>

Dear Joe,

This email serves as final notification that I am TERMINATING your representation, effective immediately, due to the severe and repeated pattern of professional misconduct, breach of trust, and provision of financially incompetent advice confirmed in your email and attachments dated October 19, 2025. You are instructed to cease all work on my case immediately.

1. IMMEDIATE CORRECTION OF ETHICAL BREACH AND MISREPRESENTATION (Georgia Rule 8.4(c))

You must immediately and unequivocally correct the record with opposing counsel. Your email stating, "Attached is a signed Temporary Order," when I have NOT SIGNED OR CONSENTED to that order, is a direct misrepresentation and a clear violation of Georgia Rule 8.4(a)(1).
Action Required Immediately: You must send an immediate, written retraction to Jennifer McGhan stating that the document was unexecuted, unapproved, and that the word "signed" was used in error.
You must forward a copy of this retraction to me immediately.

2. GROUNDS FOR TERMINATION: INCOMPETENCE & HARM (Georgia Rule 1.1)

Your advice regarding the TSP withdrawal is incorrect and would cause catastrophic financial harm to the marital estate by incurring a 10% early withdrawal penalty and immediate taxes. This is a fundamental breach of your duty of Competence (Rule 1.1). Furthermore, your failure to include my critical facts—securing SNAP/Health Insurance and my role as the primary caregiver—in communications is negligence that damages my position for custody and support in Camden County.

3. URGENT DEMAND FOR FILE, FINAL INVOICE, AND FULL REFUND

The $3,000 I paid you was the last of my available funds, and I now have only $7 in my bank account, leaving me unable to afford my necessary prescription medication for my total and permanent disability, as documented in my medical file.

Given the misrepresentation, incompetence, and the fact that your actions have directly contributed to my current inability to access necessary medical treatment, I demand the IMMEDIATE REFUND of the full $3,000 paid to your firm.

You must provide a final, itemized statement and accounting of all fees and costs paid from the retainer, but I am formally stating my position that no fees were earned due to your material breaches of the Rules of Professional Conduct.

I demand the immediate preparation and transfer of my entire original file (pleadings, correspondence, discovery, and billing records).

I will forward the name and contact information of my new counsel within the next 72 hours.

This will acknowledge receipt of your email. Pursuant to your demand I will immediately withdraw from your case. I will refund $1500.I have informed JenniferMcGhan of your position, even though the order represents what was agreed upon. Your statement that it is unethical for me to consent to the form and content of an order is not correct. Your statement that you were unaware of a withdrawal penalty from the TSP is also false. The penalty was specifically mentioned to you in the presence of Jennifer McGhan, my son, Remington, East, and myself. Your Statement that I negligently gave financial advice is also false. Your statement that I misrepresented anything to you is also a falsehood. I must just warn you if you take these false statements public, you better be prepared to back them up legally otherwise I will take action against you.

Jennifer McGhan stated that she will take the matter up for an emergency hearing in front of Judge Green at 9:30 on Thursday. She informed me at that time she is going to be seeking attorneys fees and reimbursement for the time that your wife has to takeoff from work.

Dear Joe,

I acknowledge receipt of your email dated October 19, 2025, and your cessation of services. To be clear, you were discharged for cause due to material breaches of the Georgia Rules of Professional Conduct. This is my final communication to you.

---

1. REFUSAL OF REFUND OFFER AND DEMAND FOR FULL $3,000

I reject your offer of a $1,500 refund and demand the immediate return of the full $3,000 retainer.

I am now reserving the right to file a request for Fee Arbitration with the State Bar of Georgia, where this correspondence will be presented as evidence of your discharge for cause.

2. CONCLUSIVE PROOF OF DISCHARGE FOR CAUSE (100% FACTUAL)

Your denial of my statements is refuted by evidence and the Rules of Professional Conduct.

Misrepresentation of Client Consent (G-RPC Rule 8.4(c)): The agreement reached in the courtroom side-room was verbal only, and I never signed or consented to the final drafted order.

Despite this, you personally signed the "Consented as to form and content" line on a court order without my approval.
You then sent opposing counsel an email stating: "Attached is a signed Temporary Order," falsely asserting that I, the client, had executed the document.
This is a clear violation of Georgia Rule 8.4(c), which prohibits conduct involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit, or misrepresentation.

Financial Incompetence (G-RPC Rule 1.1): I have confirmed with the Thrift Savings Plan (TSP) that the only penalty-free mechanism to access marital funds in divorce is through a Retirement Benefits Court Order (RBCO).

Your failure to advise on the RBCO and your subsequent comparison to an irrelevant case confirms you were prepared to allow me to incur a 10% early withdrawal penalty plus taxes, which is a clear breach of your duty of Competence (Rule 1.1).

Intimidation and Failure to Consult (G-RPC Rule 1.4): When I attempted to email you with my objections to the proposed order, you called me personally and began yelling at me, refusing to allow me to communicate my position. This is a direct breach of your obligation under Rule 1.4 to consult with the client.

3. RESPONSE TO THREAT AND EMERGENCY HEARING

I am actively retaining new counsel. Your warning that you "will take action against me" if I publish true statements regarding your professional conduct is noted.

Regarding the emergency hearing on Thursday: You are obligated to protect my legal interests following your discharge, as stated in Georgia Rule 1.16(d). I require proof that you have explicitly communicated to Judge Green's office and opposing counsel that you have been discharged for cause and that I am currently unrepresented and unprepared.

4. FILE DEMAND

You must immediately prepare my complete original file for transfer to my new attorney, whose information will be forwarded to you within the next 24 hours.

EXHIBIT H

REQUEST FOR REASONABLE ACCOMMODATION UNDER THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT

TO: Camden County Superior Court
FROM: William Rodger Johnson, Pro Se Defendant
CASE: Johnson v. Johnson, Civil Action No. 2025CV936
DATE: October 21, 2025
RE: Request for Reasonable Accommodations Under the ADA

I. INTRODUCTION

Pursuant to the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), 42 U.S.C. § 12101 et seq., and Title II of the ADA which applies to state courts, I, William Rodger Johnson, respectfully request reasonable accommodations in all proceedings related to the above-referenced case.

II. DISABILITY INFORMATION

I have been recently diagnosed with the following disabilities:

1. Autism Spectrum Disorder (diagnosed September 1, 2025)
2. Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (diagnosed June 17, 2025)

I am under the active care of Camden Behavioral Wellness and am compliant with all prescribed treatment. I am currently applying for Federal Disability Retirement based on my inability to perform my previous duties as an Engineering Technician for the U.S. Department of Defense.

Documentation: Diagnostic evaluations and medical records are available upon request and can be submitted under seal to protect medical privacy.

III. FUNCTIONAL LIMITATIONS

My disabilities result in the following documented functional limitations that affect my ability to participate in legal proceedings:

A. Executive Function Impairments

Per formal psychological evaluation (ADHD Test Results, June 17, 2025), my executive function challenges are rated "Highly Elevated" across all domains:

EXHIBIT I

- Difficulty with organization and planning
- Challenges with working memory and attention
- Impaired ability to process complex information under time pressure
- Difficulty initiating tasks and managing multiple demands simultaneously

B. Communication Differences

Per autism diagnostic evaluation (September 1, 2025):

- Difficulty with spontaneous verbal communication in stressful situations
- Challenges understanding implied or non-literal communication
- Need for clear, direct, written communication
- Social communication differences affecting real-time verbal exchanges

C. Processing Time Requirements

- Need additional time to process complex legal information
- Difficulty making important decisions under arbitrary time pressure
- Challenges adjusting to unexpected changes in plans or procedures

D. Sensory Sensitivities

- Difficulty in busy, chaotic environments with multiple stimuli
- Heightened sensitivity to noise and visual distractions
- Need for predictable, structured environment to function optimally

IV. REQUESTED ACCOMMODATIONS

To ensure meaningful access to the courts, I respectfully request the following reasonable accommodations:

A. Communication Accommodations

1. Written Communication Preference
    - All court orders, notices, and important communications to be provided in writing
    - Written agendas provided at least 48 hours before any hearing

    - Written summaries of oral proceedings when feasible
    - Ability to submit questions or concerns in writing
2. Clear, Direct Language
    - Use of straightforward, literal language in all court communications
    - Avoidance of legal jargon without explanation
    - Clear delineation between suggestions and requirements

B. Time-Related Accommodations

3. Extended Processing Time
    - Minimum 30 days notice for non-emergency hearings
    - Additional time to respond to motions and filings (suggest 50% extension of standard deadlines)
    - No same-week or arbitrary short-notice deadlines absent true emergency
    - Ability to request brief recesses during hearings to process information
4. Structured Scheduling
    - Consistent hearing times when possible
    - Advance notice of any schedule changes
    - Preference for morning hearings when cognitive function is optimal

C. Courtroom/Hearing Accommodations

5. Reduced Sensory Stimulation
    - Seating in quieter area of courtroom when possible
    - Ability to use noise-reducing headphones during recesses
    - Minimization of unnecessary interruptions during my testimony or statements
6. Structured Participation
    - Clear explanation of courtroom procedures before hearings
    - Direct questions rather than open-ended inquiries when possible
    - Ability to reference written notes during proceedings

    - Permission to have a support person present (not for legal advice)

D. Interim Emergency Accommodation

7. Current Emergency Situation
    - I discharged my attorney on October 19, 2025 (two days ago)
    - Former and Opposing counsel are pressuring a Thursday, October 23 emergency hearing (2 days away)
    - I am currently unrepresented and seeking new counsel
    - IMMEDIATE ACCOMMODATION NEEDED: 30-day continuance for any deadlines or hearings to allow time to retain counsel who understands neurodivergent clients

---

V. LEGAL BASIS

A. ADA Title II Requirements

Title II of the ADA requires state courts to:

- Make reasonable modifications to policies, practices, and procedures when necessary to avoid discrimination
- Ensure effective communication with individuals with disabilities
- Provide auxiliary aids and services when necessary

B. Case Law Support

Courts have recognized that reasonable accommodations may include:

- Extended time for responses and decision-making
- Written communication preferences
- Modifications to standard procedures
- Continuances to accommodate disability-related needs

See Tennessee v. Lane, 541 U.S. 509 (2004) (affirming ADA applies to courts)

VI. THESE ACCOMMODATIONS ARE REASONABLE

The requested accommodations:

- Do not fundamentally alter the nature of court proceedings
- Do not create undue burden on the court
- Are standard accommodations provided to individuals with autism and ADHD
- Will enable me to meaningfully participate in proceedings affecting my rights
- Will reduce likelihood of misunderstandings and need for repeated proceedings

---

VII. CONFIDENTIALITY REQUEST

Pursuant to my rights under HIPAA and to protect my medical privacy, I respectfully request that:

- Any medical documentation submitted be filed under seal
- Discussions of specific medical details occur in camera when possible
- References to my disabilities in open court be limited to what is necessary

VIII. CONTACT INFORMATION

Name: William Rodger Johnson
Address: 401 Powderhorn Road, Saint Marys, Georgia 31558
Email: willyj1587@gmail.com
Phone: (912) 227-4980

Medical Provider: Adrienne Maughon - Camden Behavioral Wellness

IX. CONCLUSION

These accommodations will enable me to participate meaningfully in proceedings affecting my fundamental rights regarding my marriage, my children, and my financial stability. I am not seeking special treatment, but rather equal access to the court system as guaranteed by the ADA.

I am available to discuss these accommodations with the Court's ADA Coordinator or to provide additional medical documentation as needed.

Respectfully submitted,

William Rodger Johnson
Pro Se Defendant

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I certify that a copy of this Request for Reasonable Accommodation has been served upon opposing counsel via email on October 21, 2025.

Practitioner's Statement
In Connection With Disability Retirement under CSRS and FERS

To Whom It May Concern,

1. Comprehensive History of Present Illness and Functional Impairment

Mr. William R. Johnson is a 39-year-old male with a psychiatric history notable for these DSM-5-Tr conditions:

- Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder, Combined Presentation (F90.0)
- Autism Spectrum Disorder (F84.0)
- Generalized Anxiety Disorder (F41.1)
- Major Depressive Disorder, Recurrent, Moderate (F33.1)
- Insomnia Disorder (G47.00)

Occupational Background:

Until May 2025, the patient was employed as an Engineering Technician with the Department of Defense, where he worked on highly sensitive and cognitively demanding tasks involving motors and generators for submarines. His position required sustained concentration, high executive function, collaboration with peers, and strict adherence to safety and procedural protocols.

Symptom Onset and Progression:

The patient has struggled for many years with attention, organization, impulse control, and social communication, issues now understood to stem from his dual diagnoses of ADHD and Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD), formally diagnosed in 2025. These core impairments led to significant functional decline, despite the patient's intellect and technical knowledge.

He also suffers from chronic anxiety and episodic depressive symptoms, worsened by stressors including occupational burnout, marital conflict, and custodial limitations following child protective services involvement. His anxiety has at times manifested as daily panic attacks lasting over an hour, which have rendered him incapacitated for both family and work obligations.

To Whom it May Concern:

Mr. William R. Johnson's (DOB 8-12-1985) current functional limitations related to his diagnoses (ADHD, ASD) do not impede his ability to safely and effectively care for his children, especially with the support he is actively receiving.

Respectfully,

Adrienne Maughon, PMHNP-BC

FORMAL NOTICE: Filed ADA Accommodation Request & Motion for Continuance (Johnson v. Johnson, Civil Action No. 2025CV936)

To: "jenn@mcghanlaw.com" <jenn@mcghanlaw.com>

Dear Ms. McGhan,

Please be advised that today, October 21, 2025, I filed the following documents with the Camden County Superior Court, and copies are attached to this email as formal notice:

1. Request for Reasonable Accommodation Under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA)
2. Emergency Motion for Continuance and Order Authorizing Retirement Benefits Court Order (RBCO)

The ADA Request informs the Court of my recently diagnosed disabilities (Autism Spectrum Disorder, ADHD) and documented functional limitations, including severe Executive Function Impairments and need for extended processing time. The Motion for Continuance is necessitated by my unrepresented Pro Se status and seeks a 30-day period to allow me to secure counsel familiar with the needs of neurodivergent clients.

FORMAL LEGAL NOTICE

By this communication, you are formally notified that any actions to enforce deadlines or schedule hearings against me must now comply with my protected rights under the ADA.

1. Rejection of Deadlines: Any deadlines you have unilaterally imposed, including the deadline set for Wednesday, October 23, 2025, are now rejected. Proceeding to enforce such deadlines would directly conflict with my pending ADA Request for Extended Processing Time.
2. Requirement for Written Order: I must respectfully inform you that any attempt to proceed with the threatened hearing or to seek sanctions against me for failing to meet your arbitrary deadlines will be viewed as an intentional attempt to exploit my documented disabilities. All future deadlines and communications must be authorized by a written Order of the Court or by the Court's ADA Coordinator.

My purpose in filing these documents is not to be uncooperative, but solely to ensure I have equal and meaningful access to the court system, as required by federal law.

Thank you for your anticipated professional courtesy and compliance with my rights under the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Sincerely,

William Rodger Johnson, Pro Se Defendant

Ms. McGhan,

I write to clarify my previous email. My intent was not to unilaterally reject deadlines, but to inform you that I have filed requests with the court for accommodations and continuance due to my documented disabilities and unrepresented status.

I respectfully request that you await the court's ruling on these motions before proceeding with any emergency hearing or deadline enforcement.

I remain committed to accessing the TSP funds via proper RBCO procedure to resolve the financial crisis, and I am actively seeking counsel to facilitate this.

Thank you for your patience while the court considers my requests.

Respectfully,
William Johnson

Mr. Johnson,

We will not be waiting. We have an emergency financial situation. We will be asking for the court to order that you immediately list the house for sale because you refuse to withdraw the TSP funds to cover the delinquency. A QDRO will not prevent the 10% penalty. The 10% penalty happens anytime you withdraw from a TSP before retirement age. A QDRO does not fix the problem you're facing. A QDRO merely allocates funds to someone other than you. You can't avoid the penalty in any way on this. We will have an emergency hearing on Thursday at 9:30 a.m. to put the house on the market and be seeking attorneys fees and lost wages for my client.

I hope this notice of the emergency hearing on Thursday at 9:30 a.m., at the Superior Court in Woodbine, gives you ample notice for processing.

Respectfully,

Jennifer McGhan

Clerk Jennifer Melendez

CHRISTYN JOHNSON, Plaintiff,	)
-vs-	)	Civil Action No. 2025CV936
WILLIAM JOHNSON, Defendant.	)

EMERGENCY TEMPORARY ORDER

THIS CAUSE came on to be heard on October 23, 2025, upon the Plaintiff Wife's Ex Parte Motion for Emergency Relief

1.

The Court has jurisdiction of the parties to and the subject matter of this action.

2.

The Husband has refused to take the steps necessary to cash out his Thrift Savings Plan (TSP) in order to cure the many marital financial delinquencies, including the mortgage payment(s), which is now three (3) months past due. This has placed the parties' only major asset, the marital home, in jeopardy of foreclosure. Further, the mortgage is held in both parties' names, thus also jeopardizing the Wife's credit.

3.

The parties had previously agreed to allow the Husband one-hundred twenty (120) days to attempt to refinance the marital home, with the understanding that the Husband would immediately cash out his TSP to cure the three-month delinquency.

4.

The marital home located at 401 Powderhorn Road, Saint Marys, Georgia 31558, shall be listed for sale no later than Monday, October 27, 2025. If the parties cannot agree on a realtor to list the property, the parties shall use Georgia-Kay

EXHIBIT K

Sutterfield with Coldwell Banker in Kingsland, Georgia. The listing price shall be determined by the realtor based on the market. The parties are to promptly sign and deliver any and all documents required to effectuate the sale of the home and shall accept any reasonable offer withing ninety-five percent (95%) of the home's then-listed selling price.

5.

The parties are required to sign and execute any and all document(s) needed, and within six (6) hours of their receipt, to enter into a sales agreement with the realtor, list the home, show the home, finalize the sale of the home, and any other documents required in the home listing and sales process as determined necessary by the realtor, the mortgage company(ies), the title agent, any inspectors or appraisers, and the closing attorney.

6.

The Husband shall comply and make available the home for all showings with a proper notice as so stated in the listing agreement with the realtor.

7.

Proceeds from the sale of the marital home shall be held in trust with the Wife's attorney, Jennifer L. McGhan, Esq., McGhan Law, LLC, 575 E. King Avenue, Kingsland, Georgia 31548, until further Order of the Court.

8.

All other issues made part of the October 23, 2025 Order (nunc pro tunc October 16, 2025), not in conflict herein shall remain in full force and effect.

9.

The Wife is awarded attorney's fees and costs in the amount of $2,022.00. This sum shall be paid from the Husband's share of the proceeds from the sale of the marital home.

All remaining issues not addressed herein are reserved.

SO ORDERED this 23rd day of October, 2025.
